Gambling on the Deep Cut Wages Fairly Each Year a Language Caruso's 30 Millions

By Arthur Brisbane

(Copyright, 1921.)

You may now make a 100 per cent. American trip to Europe. Stock tickers are installed on steamers, wireless telegraph sends the ups and downs of the Street. You may get in or get out as you walk the deck.

Such a ticker would have spared one man a severe shock. Leonard Jerome, of the family that financed the Churchills through marriage, decided to go to Europe and enjoy some of his money. When he got there he had none to enjoy. A first class Wall Street smash had bankrupted him, and he never had a chance, far out at sea, to use his judgment.

The first thought of the gentlemen dealing with unemployment is "Cut down wages" to compete with lower wages in foreign countries. Wages in some lines must drop, have dropped. The committee should not overlook the fact that in many lines American workers produce twice as much as European workers. A recent able article by Mr. Hinman gives facts that should interest that committee.

In China, moving freight costs more than here, although the workers may get only 10 cents a day. They move the freight by man power. American workers, as well as capitalists, are entitled to part of the prosperity that comes from machinery.

Edward Roche Hardy, aged thirteen, speaks twelve languages, weighs 150 pounds, will soon be out of college, with a few more languages added to his list and, after absorbing theology, will go to the Far East as a missionary.

There is the gift of tongue with a vengeance. The heathen in his blindness should surely bow down to Edward Roche Hardy rather than "to wood and stone." Many lads, speaking only one language, and not too well, will eclipse young Hardy. That is fate.

Caruso left a fortune of 30,000,000 lire. Did he earn it all singing in opera? No, only a small part. Most of the money came to him from the Victor Talking Machine Company in payment for records. The talking machine does for singers and their fortunes what the printing press does for writers—makes them rich beyond the dreams of ancient times.

Caruso's 30,000,000 lire amount now to about $1,250,000. Too bad he did not keep it all in dollars. In American dollars the fortune would be $6,000,000. He earned all of it many times, giving happiness to millions that never saw him.

Albania and Serbia are fighting. Greece and Turkey are fighting. Trotzky, reviewing his Russian troops, tells them he expects soon to be fighting Poland and Rumania, urged on by France.

Two Central American countries would be fighting now—only Uncle Sam would not let them. Some South American countries want to fight and may start.

There ought to be some way of compelling the nations to get back to sanity. "Limiting" armament doesn't do it. Poison gas, air bombs and flying machines are quickly made.

Trotzky, by the way, spoke near the Kremlin, on a stand below the tower on which Ivan the Terrible once addressed his troops. It would surprise Ivan and Peter, too, to find the armies of holy Russia commanded by a Jew—and, incidentally, winging fights and beating back a combination of half the nations of Europe.

The intrusive book agent, kicked from one floor down to the next for ten flights, by ten different men, said he could not help admiring the system. That is how you feel about police bootlegging in Chicago, where, by the way, crimes are revealed, not suppressed or hidden by the police chief.

Policemen in uniform seized liquor in freight cars. Then they sold it at a low price, to enable it to run another policemen making seizure No. 2.

Sometimes they seized and resized a dozen times, the whiskey finally reaching some favored bar for retailing at high prices.

That is a perfect system, and it will not be broken up.

Where law-breaking is profitable and much of public sympathy is with, or indifferent, you may be sure that the law has been made the wrong way.

Experiments, bombing from airships, will soon be made with bombs weighing 4,000 pounds. Larger bombs will come later. Such bombs will smash any battleship, and EXACT HITS ARE NOT NECESSARY.

The water against a ship's hull will crush in that hull as easily as any solid steel could do it. Drop a huge bomb close to the ship and the thrust of the water, caused by the explosion will sink anything.

The battleship is gone, and it is the business of the President to make the navy know it and act on it. It will mean sorrow for battleship and armor-plate profiteers, and a change of habits for officers fond of taking the air on the quarterdeck. But that should make no difference.

One man, handling milk on one small farm, caused thirty known cases of typhoid. He was a "typhoid carrier," germs always in his system. That case has been attended to.

It will interest also the saber class who know that disease germs are as real as elephants and that BOILING OR THOROUGHLY PASTEURIZING THAT MILK WOULD

Lloyd George, Declaring He Cannot Alter Position, Sends 'Final' Letter

By Associated Press

Dublin, Sept. 29. (By Associated Press)—A world conference of the Irish race will be held in Paris on January 22, 1923, anniversary of the first session of the Dail Eireann, it was announced by the Sinn Fein organization here today. Fourteen countries will be represented in the conference, it was said. A secretariat already has been opened in Paris.

London, Sept. 29 (By the Associated Press).—Leaders of the Irish Sinn Fein have been invited to take part in a conference in this city on October 11, in the note dispatched to Eamon De Valera by Premier Lloyd George.

This communication was dispatched early today and was considered to be the British government's final word in the exchange of messages between London and Dublin.

The text of the premier's note follows:

"Sir:—His Majesty's government have given close and earnest consideration to the correspondence which has passed between us since their invitation to you to send delegates to a conference at Inverness.

"In spite of their sincere desire for peace, and, in spite of the more conciliatory tone of your latest communications, they cannot enter into a conference upon the basis of this correspondence.

"Notwithstanding your personal assurances to the contrary, which they much appreciate, it might be argued in the future that the acceptance of a conference on this basis had involved them in a recognition which no British government can accord. On this point they must guard themselves against any possible doubt.

"There is no purpose to be served by any further interchange of exploratory and argumentative communications upon this subject. The position taken up by His Majesty's government is fundamental to the existence of the British Empire, and they cannot alter it.

"My colleagues and I remain, however, keenly anxious to make, in cooperation with your delegates, another determined effort, to explore every possibility of a settlement by personal discussion.

"The proposals which we have already made have been taken by the whole world as proof that our endeavors for reconciliation and settlement are no empty form, and we feel that conference, not correspondence, is the most practical and hopeful way to an understanding such as we ardently desire to achieve.

"We, therefore, send you herewith a fresh invitation to a conference in London on October 11, where we can meet your delegates as the spokesmen of the people whom you represent with a view to ascertaining how the association of Ireland with the community of nations, known as the British Empire, may best be reconciled with Irish national aspirations.

"I am, Sir, yours faithfully,

"D. LLOYD GEORGE."

ARLINGTON WOMAN IS GIRL TAKES KILLED BY POISON 1-MAN CAR

Love Affair Prompted Elsie Sorby's Act in Doctor's Office, Police Believe

Miss Elsie Sorby, twenty-two years old, is in a serious condition in Somerville Hospital as a result of drinking a quantity of iodine in what police believe was an attempt at suicide caused by an unhappy love affair.

The girl, who lives at No. 3 Teele street, Arlington, was hurried to the hospital by Dr. John G. Thomas of Somerville, in whose office she is said to have taken the poison. She will probably recover, hospital authorities say.

According to the story Dr. Thomas told the police, the girl was sitting in his waiting room awaiting a consultation. While the doctor was busy with another patient, Miss Sorby is said to have seized a bottle of iodine from a medical cabinet. Rushing to the window she put the bottle to her lips and drained it of its contents.

Dr. Thomas instantly applied first aid measures and then put her in his touring car and took her to the hospital. She refused to explain her actions either to him or to hospital attendants.

According to the police, this is the second attempt at self-destruction Miss Sorby has made within the past few weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence A. Sorby, parents of the girl are on their way from Providence to her bedside. They were notified immediately after the discovery of their daughter's condition, and left the Rhode Island city for Boston at once.

Scores See Her Dragged by Brockton Trolley While on Her Way to Work

Brockton, Sept. 29.—Another one-man car has figured in a tragedy. Mrs. Louise Rollins of No. 32 Pearl street, East Bridgewater, was run down and killed by a car at Main and Dover streets here today.

Scores saw the tragedy and heard the woman's cry when she was struck. She was dragged several feet before Operator James H. Taylor could bring his car to a halt.

Coming immediately after the Kingston horror, in which four school children were shocked to death by electricity while trying to escape from a burning trolley, today's tragedy aroused a storm of indignation against the use of cars of the one-man type.

To this bitter comment Operator Taylor replied that the type of car had nothing to do with the accident, and that Mrs Rollins stepped directly in front of the car. The woman, who was thirty-seven years old, was on her way to work at the White Star Laundry here.

She had just left the East Bridgewater car and was walking toward the sidewalk.

According to Taylor she was concealed behind the car she had just left and suddenly stepped on the track directly in front of him, only a few feet away. She was panic-stricken and confused, and before she could see toward safety the car was upon her.

The accident possessed more than the usual element of horror, as she was not rendered senseless immediately and was conscious as her body was dragged along the track.

There, we will a part of life when she was picked up, but it passed while she was being taken to Brockton Hospital. She was identified by an envelope found in her handbag.

"There was no line o do anyhing," said Taylor, operator. "It would have occured just the same had the car been of the two-man crew type."

Notwithstanding the statement of the operator the accident served to increase the prejudice against the one-man cars here and to swell the popular rumor for a return to the two-man cars.

Regardless of the merits of the individual case, the death of Mrs. Rollins was in the public mind, added to the list of ninety-three injured, and four killed in one-man car accidents in Massachusetts since March 20 of this year.

'Fatty' Prepares to Go to Los Angeles After Murder Charge Is Dismissed

By International News Service.

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 29.—Roscoe C. ("Fatty") Arbuckle, free today after eighteen days imprisonment, and happy in the knowledge that he will not be forced to stand trial for murder as a result of the death of Virginia Rappe, film actress, prepared to return to Los Angeles.

Mobbed by scores of women who desired to shake his hand and shower congratulations on his following announcement of Judge Lazarus' decision late yesterday which held the comedian for manslaughter, but dismissed the murder charge demanded by District Attorney Brady, Arbuckle last night sought seclusion.

From the city jail following his release on bail two hours after Judge Lazarus had dismissed the murder charge Arbuckle went by automobile to the home of his brother, A. O. Arbuckle, for dinner. From there he disappeared from public view.

Frank Dominguez, his chief of counsel, announced that Arbuckle would leave for Los Angeles tonight.

WOMEN IN COURT HISS PROSECUTOR AND CONGRATULATE 'FATTY'

WIFE WEEPS AS CHARGE OF MURDER IS DISMISSED

in which to file the information based on the finding of Judge Lazarus yesterday. He has announced that he will proceed on the police court holdings rather than the grand jury indictment, which will be permitted to lie.

After the filing of the information, Arbuckle will appear to enter his plea, after which a date for the trial will be set.

"Trial within sixty days" was the unanimous of opinion of attorneys on both sides today.

The decision of Judge Lazarus was a bitter disappointment to District Attorney Brady and his staff.

BRADY DISAPPOINTED.

"This action of Judge Lazarus in holding the defendant to answer on a charge of manslaughter is wholly mystifying," said a statement issued by Brady.

"The very fact that he has held the defendant to answer on a charge of manslaughter is a demonstration that he should have been held on a charge of murder.

"In America I had supposed there was one law for all. I am now told that there is one law for the 'important' defendant in an important case and another law for a 'trivial' defendant in a trivial case.

"Reduced to its final analysis, a case becomes important or trivial as the defendant is important or trivial. If Roscoe Arbuckle were unknown and unimportant, he would have been held for murder and treated precisely as were the defendants of recent disrepute."

BAIL SET AT $5,000.

Arbuckle was released after bail had been placed at $10,000 bonds or $5,000 cash. His attorneys had previously put up the cash.

By the California penal code, it lies within the discretion of the committing magistrate to hold a man to answer for whatever crime is, in the view of the court, indicated by the evidence presented.

Arbuckle, as soon as Judge Lazarus announced his decision, stood under two separate charges of manslaughter—the Police Court charge and the indictment voted two weeks ago by the grand jury.

Open criticism of the conduct of the district attorney and his staff, for not producing before Judge Lazarus all the evidence at their disposal, was voiced both by the court and by the committee of club women which has been watching the proceedings.

By a rapid shifting of sentiment the women of the audience crowded around Arbuckle, shaking his hands and congratulating him. He received the plaudits with his usual silent stoicism, not uttering a word in reply, not even smiling. "Fatty" seemed the least conscious or concerned person in the courtroom.

His wife, Minta Durfee, had sat praying half audibly while Judge Lazarus was making his statement. Apparently she had kept herself from fainting only by a rigid effort of will. When the Judge said "manslaughter" she collapsed into a fit of weeping and was led from the court room by the women—her new-found friends.

Judge Lazarus throughout the statement leading up to his decision, repeatedly referred to his lack of information on important points. Both by inference and direct statement, he blamed the district attorney for not permitting him greater enlightenment.

Assistant Prosecutor Golden, trying to interrupt, was hissed by the audience of women.

Judge Lazarus recalled that the prosecution had closing the case, that a defense motion to dismiss the charge had been denied, and that the defense would now have an opportunity to offer testimony.

"After consultation with my colleagues," said Defense Attorney Dominguez, "I have determined that we shall not submit any testimony to this court. We leave the matter entirely in the light that it uses it."

Dominguez referred to the fact that the grand jury and the coroner's jury had both previously brought manslaughter verdicts.

"The district attorney, for reasons of his own, mind you, charged this man with murder," cried Dominguez, raising his voice until the courtroom rang. "The Delmont woman charged him with the crime of murder. She swore to it.

COURT AT DISADVANTAGE.

"She is the living witness who should have been brought into this temple of justice and made to testify as the complaining witness in this case. They have not seen fit to produce her; we are therefore at a disadvantage, and this court is at a disadvantage."

Judge Lazarus said:

SUPPRESSES DISCUSSION.

"The district attorney has frankly admitted that he has presented for my consideration just enough facts—perhaps I may say barely enough facts—to justify my holding the defendant on the charge against him; indicating that he has in reserve, but has failed to present to this Magistrates' Court, additional witnesses which, he says, would more strongly establish the fact that the defendant, Roscoe, Arbuckle, is guilty of the crime of murder."

He entered into a somewhat lengthy analysis of the evidence in which the following statements were significant:

INCOMPLETE REVELATIONS.

"In this thing we have a public lesson. The case is a larger case than the District Attorney would have us understand. It involves issues larger than the guilt or innocence of this defendant, and I had really hoped that this humble police court would be an avenue through which a full and complete revelation would be made of all the facts and circumstances, so that the public not alone of this city, but of the entire world, would have the opportunity of determining the guilt or innocence of this man, whose fame has traveled—and I shall say has justly traveled—to the four quarters of the globe. A man who gives joy and pleasure to his fellow men is more valuable, I should say in the scheme of creation, even than lawyers and judges and other persons who add more to the gloom of existence—Statement by Judge Lazarus preceding his refusal to hold Arbuckle for trial on a charge of murder.

guess larger than the guilt or innocence of this defendant, and I had really hoped that this humble police court would be an avenue through which a full and complete revelation would be made of all the facts and circumstances. So that the public, not alone of this city but of the entire world, would have the opportunity of determining the guilt or innocence of this man, whose fame has traveled, and I shall say justly traveled, to the four quarters of the globe.

"A man who gives joy and pleasure to his fellowmen is more valuable, I should say in the scheme of creation, even than lawyers and judges and other persons who add more to the gloom of existence."

Recurring to the testimony the court said that the evidence showed that a condition" let us charitably say, of festivity prevailed. There was much liquor drunk in this public place, in this prominent hotel, despite the recent unpopular addition to the constitution of the United States.

COMPLAINING WITNESS DRUNK.

"The complaining witness here in particular—the woman who has instigated this prosecution—is described as having been in a particularly inebriated condition.

"Now, my analysis of the facts is based entirely and naturally upon the testimony offered here. I am not permitted to draw upon my imagination, or make a guess as to what the district attorney may possibly have in reserve.

"After these two parties entered that room they remained in there, I think the testimony of Miss Prevost says, for about three-quarters of an hour. No sounds were heard by the other joyous gatherers in the other rooms emanating from the room in which the deceased and the defendant were.

"After an interval of about three-quarters of an hour, the complaining witness, who has not been produced here in court, and Miss Prevost, made a clamor at the door. The door was opened by the defendant. Those two ladies entered the room and found Miss Rappe lying on the bed, fully clothed and apparently in a condition of great pain.

VICTIM TORE CLOTHES.

"That she was clutching at her clothes and with assistance of her companions the clothes were removed until she was in a state of nudity. The garments have been introduced in evidence here—badly torn.

SEANACHER TESTIMONY.

"As a remote connection, evidence has been introduced which refers to the vulgar and ribald conduct of the defendant in connection with a piece of ice. But this was a matter which happened after the main event. It had no connection, and while certainly a very, very regrettable incident, I do not feel that the defendant would have done the act if he had realized at the time that the lady was in the desperate condition which subsequently developed.

"Anyhow, that thing, although abhorrent, had nothing to do with any injuries by the deceased. It is one of those things which I have tried to make you realize, in view of present social conditions, makes this case of greater importance to the community and to the world than the ordinary police court hearing.

"Photographs were introduced showing various bruises, but Dr. Beardsley testified that the only bruise he saw on her body was on bruise on the arm.

NERVOUS CHAMBERMAID.

"The only witness who gave any direct testimony bearing upon the guilt or innocence of this defendant was the nervous chambermaid who appeared as the last witness for the prosecution. She stated that she heard the words in a woman's voice, 'No, no, oh, my God!' emanating from room 1219 in reply to which she heard a man's voice stating: 'Shut up!'

"That is the only testimony which would by any conceivable possibility connect the defendant with the commission of a crime."

DISMISSES MURDER CHARGE.

"The whole conclusion is this: That their should be an abundance of evidence; that the court has been presented with the mere outline, a very skeletonized description of what, if anything, occurred in the apartment implicating the defendant in the commission of the crime of murder.

"The question is whether, under its facts adduced by the prosecution here, I am justified in sending this man up to the Superior Court for trial on the grievous charge of murder.

"My conclusion is, counsel, that under the circumstances I have no such justification. However, I have decided to make a holding on the ground of manslaughter, feeling that there is enough in the conduct of the defendant justifying some possible defence or explanation on his part.

"I feel that no criminal attack has been proved here. There may have been other acts on the part of the defendant, however, which caused the injuries resulting in her death."

"I now make a finding by which I hold the defendant, Roscoe Arbuckle, for trial before the Superior Court of this county on the charge of manslaughter."

JUDGE SEES PUBLIC LESSON IN ARBUCKLE CASE

IN THIS thing we have a public lesson. The case is a larger case than the district attorney would have us understand. It involves issues larger than the guilt or innocence of this defendant, and I had really hoped that this humble police court would be an avenue through which a full and complete revelation would be made of all the facts and circumstances, so that the public not alone of this city, but of the entire world, would have the opportunity of determining the guilt or innocence of this man, whose fame has traveled—and I shall say has justly traveled—to the four quarters of the globe. A man who gives joy and pleasure to his fellow men is more valuable, I should say in the scheme of creation, even than lawyers and judges and other persons who add more to the gloom of existence—Statement by Judge Lazarus preceding his refusal to hold Arbuckle for trial on a charge of murder.

PREMIER ASKS IRISH TO NEW PARLEY

as a result of pending negotiations between Premier Lloyd George and Eamon De Valera, a conference will be signed which will recognize the nationhood of the Irish people," Frank P. Walsh, counsellor to the Irish republic, who has just returned from a several weeks' visit there, told the International News Service today.

"Negotiations may again approach the breaking point and things may look black as regards a settlement, but I believe that peace will result."

Mr. Walsh attended sessions of Dail Eireann called to take action on peace overtures from Lloyd George and was with De Valera daily during much of the correspondence with Downing street.

"Is it true that De Valera has been put in a corner by the negotiations?" Mr. Walsh was asked.

"Decidedly not," he retorted. "It's the other way about. Lloyd George is in the mouth of a hole. The Britons may refuse to accept the Sinn Fein delegates into another conference as the declared representatives of a sovereign nation. The British are entitled to regard the Sinn Fein delegates by whatever term they may wish. But the Irish delegates will never go into a peace parley denying either its themselves or to their adherents that they are the actual representatives of a foreign state. The Irish delegates know their full representative status."

"Would not Mr. De Valera be entitled to claim a substantial victory if he obtained full dominion status for Ireland in the negotiations?"

"I cannot comment on that, for that is not the object of the negotiations," Mr. Walsh replied. "The Irish demand full independence and freedom."

"Are hostilities likely to be resumed?"

"To employ a phrase of Michael Collins, head of the Sinn Fein army, it is within range of possibilities for 'hostilities' to be restored," Mr. Walsh said.

"If they should be 'restored,' which is not the desire of either side, then they will be waged, I fear, on a more extensive scale."

"There are 300 Sinn Fein army camps in Ireland. They are not secret camps. The Irish volunteer trains in the open. Large estate of English landlords and Unionists in Southern Ireland have been appropriated and converted into camps. I visited several. If hostilities should be renewed the warfare would be even more bitter.

"The volunteers have British Enfield army rifles which have been captured from British troops. Seventy out of eighty men in an Irish company have Enfields. The other rifles are American made."

Mr. Walsh had time, he said, to investigate some phases of what he termed "England's economic stranglehold upon Ireland." He cited numerous cases from his own personal experience of having an Irish pound cashed in London for only nineteen shillings, preferential shipping rates to English ports that hampered all direct trade with Ireland, to fixing of Irish produce and livestock prices on the London markets to the enormous financial loss of all Irish development of Irish manufactures.

It was this "commercial strangle-hold," Mr. Walsh declared, that made the Irish as a nation fight for political freedom so that Ireland could be made prosperous.

Sinn Fein Cabinet Considers Premier's Note

By International News Service.

Dublin, Sept. 29.—Optimism over an early settlement of the Irish peace problem was revived by Premier Lloyd George's latest note, which was received here this afternoon and immediately taken under consideration by the Sinn Fein cabinet.

The Premier's letter justifies full public confidence in the proposed peace conference," said a leading member of Dail Eireann.

"Eamonn De Valera's answer may be drafted this evening and placed before the cabinet tomorrow."

The general impression here was that Lloyd George's note marks the final abandonment of the exchange of phrases, makes it certain that a parley will be held and offers the hope that De Valera may get better terms.

CORNELL PICKED 'VAMPS' FROM MOVIE AGENCY PHOTOS, IS CHARGE

METHOD OF DIRECTOR REVEALED

How Bert H. Cornell, the Brighton film director, charged with attacking Mrs. Anna Francis in a Back Bay apartment, became acquainted with many young women aspirants for position—"the "movies" will be told at his trial next month in Roxbury Court.

An arrangement was made between the attorneys for both sides to continue the case until October 13, but according to police officials Cornell did not like the "jinx" date so October 18 was chosen, instead, at the request of James A. Tirrell, his lawyer.

SAY 11 HIRED AS "VAMPS."

A total of eleven young women are alleged to have been engaged by Cornell for the "vamp" role in the picture he claimed he was producing. Some of these young women were engaged when their photographs were submitted—before Cornell even had an opportunity to talk with these aspirants for screen honors, it is claimed.

One of the young women who was hired before she was seen was Miss Muriel Marshall of Pembroke street, South End.

Miss Marshall listed her name with a Back Bay motion picture registry and paid a $2 fee. She agreed to give half her first week's wages if she secured a position with a motion picture concern.

It is understood that the man who conducted this "registry" secured hundreds of dollars from young women who sought fame in the moving pictures.

The photograph that Miss Marshall filed with this registry was seen by Cornell, and, it is alleged, he hired her after taking one glance at the picture and before seeing the original.

"My experience with Mr. Cornell was of such a thrilling and unusual nature," said Miss Marshall, "that I shall never forget it. My sole purpose in coming forward and telling my story is because I believe that this sort of thing should be stopped.

"I desired to get into the 'movies' and went to a motion picture registry in the Back Bay.

REGISTRY NOW CLOSED.

"I told the man in the office of my ambition and he told me that it would be necessary for me to file a photograph of myself there. I supplied the photograph and paid a fee of $2. I also promised to give half of my first week's wages to the manager. I don't know whether he ever placed any girls in 'movie' positions, but I have never learned that he did. The man is not there now, the office having been closed and I do not know where he has gone.

"The only opportunity that I obtained was with Mr. Cornell's supposed company. My photograph was shown to him by another woman and I was engaged by Mr. Cornell before he saw me.

CLAIM HE OFFERED WHISKEY.

"Mr. Cornell got in touch with me and took me to lunch. On the first day we met he offered me the 'vampire' role in the picture he was supposed to be producing and agreed to pay me $100 a week and expenses. Later I went to a Back bay apartment with him and donned a tan gown at his request.

Another girl who was with me partly disrobed in my presence and that of Mr. Cornell that day. He said he wanted to see how we would photograph. He begged my pardon that day during my visit to the apartment, saying that he had been drinking. At the same time he invited me to drink some whiskey but I declined.

"On the second occasion that I met him he told me that he wanted to see me attired as 'Mother Eve' was in the days of Eden and then I realized that things were not right.

GIRL TYPIST TO FIGHT CHARGE OF LARCENY

Dorothy Harrington Firm in Belief That She Will Be Acquitted

"I face my trial for larceny in a spirit of complete faith and assurance that I will be acquitted, for I am innocent."

With a wan smile on her lips, which the strain of a criminal accusation has caused to tremble pathetically, Miss Dorothy Harrington, the twenty-three-year-old Cambridge girl, who was released on bond after arraignment in Municipal Court on a charge of larceny of $1,000, spoke these words to her attorney, Thomas P. Culhane, of No. 6 Beacon street, before she left Boston for a short stay with friends in the country, where she will seek to forget, temporarily, the charges against her.

She was to have appeared before the Cambridge police today on a charge of larceny of $60 from Mrs. Helen L. Leach, of No. 11 Trowbridge street, Cambridge, but, as her counsel was not in town, that phase of her case was put off until tomorrow morning.

CLAIMS FATHER IS LOYAL.

Discussing her case, Miss Harrington further declared:

"I have not lost my father's love and affection, as it has been reported. He has assured me that he will be with me to the end. For he, too, is confident that the fact of my innocence will ultimately cause me to be cleared.

"I will be able to show my friends that I have not acted in a manner unworthy of their confidence in me."

As she departed from the dingy municipal court room, released in bonds of $2,000 for appearance on October 17, Culhane likewise made a hurried departure from Boston. While he declined to state his destination, it is known that he left to secure additional evidence to aid the girl when she comes to trial. He is believed to have gone to Concord, N. H., where she was employed in the office of Judge Remick prior to the time the charges were filed against her.

A MISUNDERSTANDING.

At Culhane's request the girl refused to make any detailed statement of the defence she will offer against the charge that, while employed as a real estate salesman by Anton Soulas, she misappropriated $1,000 given her in a business transaction by George Khroury. But Attorney Frank Wilson, one of Culhane's associates, asserted that the matter was one of misunderstanding and could easily be cleared up at the proper time.

Wilson scoffed at the assertion, made to a reporter for the Boston American by Soulas and his wife, that she had gone to the Dempsey-Carpentier fight, and that a desire for money to pay her expenses there led her to commit the alleged larceny.

PLEADS NOT GUILTY.

Miss Harrington, who was arrested in Concord a few days ago as a fugitive from justice, and was released on bail, returned to Boston alone yesterday. With Culhane she went during the afternoon, to police headquarters, where she was placed under arrest by Inspector George Farrell. After she had been formally booked on the larceny charge she was arraigned before Judge Duff. She entered a "not guilty" plea, and secured a continuance until October 17 and was released on bail. Her bondsman was Dr. Frederick I. Weene of Somerville, who pledged property on Crom street as surety for the $2,000 required.

SHIPPING BOARD TO GET ALL-AMERICAN CREWS

New York, Sept. 29.—Only American citizens will be employed in the crews of United States Shipping Board vessels in the future. Orders to this effect were received from Washington today by R. C. Lee, assistant operating manager of the Shipping Board at this port. There is only one passenger ship flying the United States flag now in port. She is the George Washington, scheduled to sail October 4. The 200 foreigners on board, mostly Chinese, were discharged as soon as the Washington order was received.

ANGELL GREETS YALE MEN FOR 221ST YEAR

New Haven, Sept. 29.—Everything on hinges at Yale University swung inward today. The 221st year of its existence began with an inrush of students. Changes are many, and a new president, James Rowland Angell, takes up his duties and relations with the undergraduates. His greeting to them predicted a large attendance, increased resources and plans for more buildings.

His sentiments were optimized in these words: "It only remains for each of us to give of his best in loyalty and devotion to assure Yale a year of high service and achievement."

MEYER SEES NORMAL BUYING IN 6 MONTHS

Chicago, Sept. 29.—Buying power of the people of the United States will advance and may reach a normal, but not a post-war level, within six months, in the opinion of Eugene Meyer, Jr., chairman of the War Finance Corporation, who conferred with representatives of eight States called here by the Farm Bureau Federation.

What happened to Georges Carpentier on July 4 in the ring at Jersey City? Is that so? You're wrong! Carpentier was "sand-bagged." Who says so? George Bernard Shaw! "Sand-bagged," G. B. S. says, "on the occiput." Read Shaw on The Fight, in next Sunday's Boston Sunday Advertiser.

COURT WARNS SLATER MILL STRIKERS

Judge Fines Two and Declares Violence Will Not Be Tolerated

Webster, Sept. 29.—Deploring the strike at the South Village mills of the S. Slater & Sons, Inc., as a mishap that should have been averted through arbitration, Judge Henry Clarke, in the district court here today, gave 300 strikers, who thronged the courtroom at the trial of two of their number for attacking a girl worker, a stinging verbal lashing. He warned the strikers that no violence would be tolerated, after he had fined two of their number $50 and $25 each for assault.

The defendants, Anthony Nomatko, and Stanislaus Wisk, were charged with holding up Helen Nowaski as she was returning from her work Tuesday night. Wisk, it was testified, had threatened the girl with death if she returned to her work, while Nomatko, drawing a bottle from a pocket, had brandished it at the girl, who was snatched away from him by her sister, Mrs. John Hoborski. Nomatko drew the $50 fine.

But the strikers, accepting the gage of battle thrown down by General Manager Bartlett when he said "I don't give a damn," declared today they would press the strike to the finish.

Goaded by the words of their leaders, "When you have them swearing, your battle is more than three-quarters won," they manned their picket lines, and word was noised about the village that the entire plant would be tied up by the end of the week.

With the weave sheds and the carding room shut down by strikers, it was pointed out that material for the further operations was shut off, and the rest of the rooms could run only on the supplies on hand.

Extra police were on guard about the plant to prevent any outbreaks of violence.

SEIZED BOMBS EXPLODE AND INJURE FOUR

New York Firemen Victims of Duty in Work of Destroying Dangerous Missiles

New York, Sept. 29.—Two of forty-six tremendous bombs seized last Sunday by the police after fourteen had shaken Coney Island as an Italian celebration exploded when fire department inspectors began destruction of the explosives on the beach of Gravesend Bay.

One of the inspectors was mortally hurt. His left arm was blown off and he was blinded. The other suffered serious but not fatal injuries. A policeman who ran to their rescue was slightly hurt by the explosion of the second bomb. The injured:

James Butler, thirty-nine years old, No. 18 Lenox road, Brooklyn; in Coney Island Hospital; reported dying.

William Heaney, thirty-two, No. 564 St. Marks avenue, Brooklyn; burns and abrasions.

Patrolman Arthur McCloughton, twenty-six, No. 630 Park place, Brooklyn; burns of face and hands.

Salvatore Ferli, eighteen, No. 6910 Sixteenth avenue, Brooklyn; lacerations.

Fidelity to the highest sense of duty was primarily responsible for the injuries to Inspectors Butler and Heaney. They had been instructed to throw the bombs into Gravesend Bay. When the police had removed the explosives to the beach, Butler and Heaney decided that, if thrown into the bay, some of them might be washed ashore and cause harm to persons or property.

They therefore decided to break up the bombs, pour the powder into the water and insure against any future explosions. In so doing they realized the peril of the proceeding.

JAMAICA PLAIN GIRL ARRESTED IN PROVIDENCE

Providence, Sept. 29.—Gladys F. O'Ryan, 17 years old, of Jamaica Plain, Mass., was arrested here today charged with vagrancy. She admitted having run away from home three weeks ago, and said that she had been sleeping in garages and barns since her arrival here. In District Court she pleaded guilty and was held in $700 bail for hearing Oct. 11.

CHARGE HUSBAND AND WIFE KILLED TW OSONS

Albany, Ga., Sept. 29.—Glenn More Hudson and his wife, Mrs. Bennie Hudson, were indicted by the Grand Jury today for the murder of Mrs. Hudson's two sons, Isaiah and Robert Temple, on July 2. The boys, sons of Mrs. Hudson's first husband, who was killed in action during the war, were found dead from pistol wounds at their home. Mrs. Hudson has charged her husband killed the boys and threatened her if she told of it.

Mme. Walska and Husband Will Spring Surprises in Suits for Divorce

Break Between Couple Is Beyond Repair, Declare Their Friends in U. S.

New York, Sept. 29.—The matrimonial rift between Ganna Walska, temperamental prima donna, and her husband, Alexander Smith Cochran, until his marriage America's richest bachelor, is irreparable. Friends of both said that there is no hope of reconciliation.

Both he and she have retained lawyers and are expected to bring court actions. Sensational allegations were hinted at by mutual friends.

Harold F. McCormick, wealthy opera patron of Chicago, who sponsored Mme. Walska's brief career with the Chicago Opera Company, is reported to be advising her. She spent part of last Summer at Dieppe, France, as his guest. He was at the resort with his daughter and a party of friends.

Mrs. McCormick, who is the daughter of John D. Rockefeller, returned from the George Washington. When questioned about the case she said:

"I do not know that woman and know nothing about her affairs."

MARRIAGE A SENSATION.

New York acquaintances of the singer say that McCormick, who had for years taken a keen interest in her operatic ambitions, introduced her to Cochran. Her marriage in the Fall of 1920 to Cochran, whose fortune is put at $40,000,000, caused a social sensation.

Dudley Field Malone, Mme. Walska's lawyer, is on his way to this country. He accompanied her, it was said, when she made her forcible entry into the Cochran Paris home, at No. 14 Rue Lubeck, a few weeks ago, after Cochran had told her not to enter it. Malone's plans could not be learned.

Speculation was current as to whether husband or wife would be the first to sue.

FRANKEL SUIT OFF.

The American learned that relatives of Dr. Joseph Frankel, Mme. Walska's second husband, had abandoned their proceedings to upset his will. Under this document, she was sole legatee of an estate amounting to more than $100,000. It was said Cochran had paid a substantial amount to the doctor's relatives to induce them to drop the will contest.

Dr. Frankel's relatives, it was said, have been co-operating with representatives of Cochran. They were quoted as saying that they never approved Frankel's marriage to the singer.

Cochran, it is said, received information which led him to doubt reports of the death of Captain Archadie d'Elingorn of the Russian army. Captain d'Elingorn, whose death in battle in 1917 on the East Prussian front was reported to have prostrated Mme. Walska, was her first husband. He married her in Poland when she was seventeen years old.

At the time of her marriage to Cochran, Mme. Walska, it is said, informed him that she had received a divorce from Captain d'Elingorn in April, 1914, but had lost the decree. This divorce, she said, had been granted by a Russian priest in Paris in 1914 on the ground of drunkenness.

If this decree is relied on in an action brought by Cochran to annul his marriage, expert testimony will be offered to show that such a decree could not have been granted except on the strongest ground, and, further, that Mme. Walska would have had to go to Russia to obtain an ecclesiastical decree from the Holy Synod.

HEARING FOR WANDERER ON EVE OF GALLOWS

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 29.—Carl Wanderer, sentenced to be hanged tomorrow morning at Chicago for the murder of a "ranged stranger," his wife and her unborn babe, today gets his last chance for life. Governor Len Small has granted a hearing at the request of W. D. Bartholomew, Wanderer's attorney, who will make his final effort to save Wanderer from the gallows.

PROVIDENCE MAN IS KILLED BY 11,000 VOLTS

Providence, Sept. 29.—Ralph Wilson, 44 years-old, of No. 41 Homestead avenue, was electrocuted today while at work in the yard of the Narragansett Electric Company. He slipped on the ladder where he was standing, his head struck an electric feed wire, carrying a current of 11,000 volts. He was dead when picked up.

100 'WIDOWS' IN SCRAMBLE FOR FORTUNE

Carolinan Had Many "Wvies" Under Each of Numerous Aliases He Bore

Ashville, N. C., Sept. 29.—King Solomon may have been wiser than the late K. L. Carson, but as a husband of many wives the modern American had the old Hebrew monarch easily distanced when all circumstances are taken into consideration.

Carson died in a local hospital last August. In a tin box he had with him, and which he turned over to the hospital authorities, with instructions to open after his death, was the proof that under the aliases of J. K. Harrison, W. M. Brown, Jack Wilson and half a dozen or so others, he had married in every port and many of the inland towns.

Attorney J. Scroop Styles was appointed to care for the estate. He published information of Carson's death, and immediately the claims began coming in. So far the list of widows is only one hundred, but Styles says there is no reason to believe the total has been reached.

There are thirty odd claimants who say they are widows of Carson. A score or more Mrs. J. L. Harrisons already have appeared; Jack Wilson comes in for his share, and the total of the "scattering" is large and growing.

All will be given a fair chance to prove their claims to the estate left by Carson, which includes a row of apartment houses in New York, stocks and other property in New Orleans and various other investments.

In addition to claims from the United States, those from foreign countries where the harrying sailor man stopped during his wanderings are just beginning to come in.

KANSAS CITY SHAKEN BY POWDER MILL BLAST

Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 29.—With a roar which was heard in the downtown districts here, an explosion occurred today at the Excelsior Power Company's plant at Holmes Park, four miles south of the city limits. One man is reported dead and three are dying. The number of injured is not known. The blast destroyed one building and was followed by fire which swept the plant.

RIOTS AS 5,000 JAP DOCK WORKERS STRIKE

Yokohama, Japan, Sept. 29.—Serious rioting has followed the strike of 5,000 dock workers here. Many of the strikers have been arrested.

Seamen and dockmen of the Nippon Yusen Kaisha Company are threatening a sympathetic strike which would tie up Japan's greatest shipping firm. The workers are demanding a 30 per. cent. wage increase.

PORTUGAL WANTS TO JOIN PARLEY HERE

SEVERAL HURT IN BATH GASOLINE EXPLOSION

Bath, Me., Sept. 29.—A gasoline explosion damaged the Bath Steam Dye plant at No. 185 Front street today, injuring Herbert E. Douglas, the proprietor, and several employes. Douglas, whose clothing was burned off, is in a serious condition. The first explosion was followed by two others after the arrival of the firemen. Chief Engineer Charles E. Parks was blown down a waste hole and Assistant Engineer Scott Morse also was thrown down. Neither was seriously hurt. The cause of the explosion was not known. The loss was set at about $10,000.

U. S. MUST FACE DYE ISSUE, SAYS HAPGOOD

Hysterical Speeches Fail to Clear Up Chemical Foundation Case, Writer Declares

By NORMAN HAPGOOD,
Boston American Staff Correspondent

Washington, Sept. 29. — The antics of the former alien property custodians, Messrs. Palmer and Garvan, have by no means ceased to attract attention. They form one of the subjects that will not down.

Interest in them is kept alive partly by the legislative controversies still going on over the dye industry, and partly by the general realization that our country has been disgraced by the vicious disregard both of treaty and of international law shown by the tricks and silly propaganda by which our officials tried to excuse their acts.

"The mistake," said a judge to me, "is in trying to throw an ethical cloak over the seizures. It should be defended on artistic grounds. In art, completeness is an attribute. But when you try to prove that it was right as well as artistically thorough you step on untenable ground."

SEQUENCE IN SEIZURES.

Then he went on to burlesque the steps in their sequence.

"First the alien property custodian started out to be what his name implies. He was to be the custodian of the property for the owners. He was to keep it in custody, in safety, for them until the trouble was past.

"Then he took a step forward. He was not only to keep it in safety but also to keep the business going in a way that should prevent their being used in any manner injurious to the United States during the war.

"Then the next extension of this growing conception was that he was to see that they were kept in use as far as possible for the definite benefit of the United States.

"The next broad step was the idea that we might as well hang onto them, as long as we had them. I call it art, but I don't see why you want to call it morals."

LITTLE TO BE DESIRED.

From the point of view of art Mr. Garvan's sale of these properties, while he was still custodian, to a group of Americans for a mere song, he himself being the official head and chief propagandist of this group, left little or nothing to be desired.

What little might be left to be desired he is supplying in still continuing to make speeches, in which he declares that the government of Wirth is in the latter part of 1921 just as much our enemy, when it comes to stealing from Germans, as the Kaiser's government ever was.

And the backing he gives to this opinion, by picturing the perils of our unborn sons and daughters, grandchildren and great-grandchildren, unless Mr. Garvan's group of private holders gets all the governmental support it asks, would bring tears to the eyes of an onion.

AIRING IN CONGRESS.

The subject is likely to be pretty fully aired this Fall in Congress. As Congressman Frazer put it:

"The sale to the Foundation should be cancelled on account of fraud, and the administration of the property should be given to responsible government officials."

He then pointed out that the attorney-general had already announced a policy of prosecuting minor military officials who had sold leather to themselves, and he added:

"The Chemical Foundation Co. presents a case of far more significance, greater importance and more clearly specific evidence, because of its inception, consummation, private sale, failure of consideration and concealment of real purpose to organize the dye business of the country into a leagalized monopoly controlled by officials who formerly represented the government."

CHARGE NEEDS CLEARING.

A charge that needs to be cleared up is that the Dupont Company, through Mr. Roucher, underwrote the Foundation for $500,000. The subject cannot be quieted by hysterical speeches to the effect that we are and always must be at war with Germany, world without end, amen.

It will have to be settled in the end by facing the issues of facts and principle. Mr. Knox was honest enough in the Senate to admit that we had broken the treaty with Prussia, and said he just preferred to do that and fix up informally with Germany after the war.

The same thing, you will observe, that Germany preferred to do with Belgium. It is artistic to get back to my legal friend, but why make monkeys of ourselves by pretending it is moral? Bethman-Holweg was more straightforward when he immortalized the scrap of paper.

Hypocrisy is unattractive. When Tom Sawyer organized the boys in his neighborhood he named them bandits or revers of the sea, and gloried in the name.

Better Clothes Than Ever

Of course, you always expect the better kind at Morse's, anyhow, but this fall we have outdone ourselves to set new standards in style, in workmanship and in quality. How well we have succeeded, only an inspection of our fall suits and overcoats will show.

Come in and look around. It's always a pleasure to show you how really great our stocks are, and to give you a chance to compare our values with other stores. That is the way we sell many men their first Morse suits—by their comparison of values. After the FIRST suit, there is never any question where they will buy the rest—it will be right here as long as they wear clothes. Cradle to age outfitting is a tradition with Morse's.

The secret of the whole thing is that we, as the largest manufacturers of Men's Clothing in New England, can and do, sell you all wool, guaranteed clothing for less money than other retailers charge for equal style or quality.

ADMITS HOLDUP STORY FALSE, SAY POLICE

Concord, N. H., Watchman Insists $4,100 Was Stolen From Company's Safe

Concord, N. H., Sept. 29.—Night Watchman John Chamberlain today confessed that his thrilling story of being held up last Saturday and robbed of $4,100 of American Express Company funds was untrue, according to the police.

This turn of events caused a greater sensation here than Chamberlain's original account of the raid of the armed bandits, who, he said, made him open the safe under threat of death.

Chamberlain, it was stated, denied today that he stole the money or profited by its theft, but declared that it was stolen from the safe because of his own carelessness and he invented the holdup story to clear himself.

He was quoted as saying he negligently left the safe open Friday night and went away from the office. When he returned the money was gone. Chamberlain startled the community and electrified the police into action Saturday with his yarn of armed thugs, fleeing motor cars and the rest of it.

He said two men came into the office, one remaining in an automobile, which was held in readiness for instant flight. One of the men, he said, covered him with a gun and commanded him to open the safe.

Following this "holdup" Chamberlain told the police the men jumped into their machine and sped away, but in what direction he did not notice. Believing his story, the police searched the countryside for hours and scores of autoists in various sections of the State were halted and questioned.

The $4,100 was being sent to two local factories.

Police refused to say whether or not there would be arrests until after a conference with detectives today.

REVENGE CAUSED ATTACK ON POLISH PRESIDENT

Washington, Sept. 29.—The attempted assassination in Lemberg last Monday of President Pilsoudski, of Poland, was occasioned by a desire for revenge on the part of Stefan Fedak, the young staff officer who is charged with the act, Dr. Longin Gehelsky, diplomatic representative of Galicia, said today. Dr. Gehelsky, who declared that he was intimately acquainted with Fedak and the latter's family, said the young officer had resented bitterly the death of his closest friend, Captain Marynovich, at the hands of Polish soldiers.

WOMAN WEAVER WALKS 100 MILES FOR WORK

Biddeford, Me., Sept. 29.—Declaring that she had walked from Exeter, N. H., 100 miles in search of work, Laura Lawrence, thirty-five years old, of that town, asked the police here for shelter over night. She told the police that she was an expert weaver, but had been unable to find work.

'WARE WASTE AND WEAR WELL!

Human Bodies Are Poisoned by Their Own Waste. Most Illnesses Are Preventable.

The human body has to be heated and fine foods burned inside the body produce much waste. All this waste should be removed from the body regularly, thoroughly, daily, by the eliminative organs,—which are the bowels, kidneys, skin, and to some extent the lungs. These should act in harmony —If the bowels are inactive extra effort is required of the others, which easily become deranged. Many medicines will force bowel action temporarily but the after-effects are harmful. Many remedies are advertised, some of which have proven year after year to be reliable, efficient, and without harmful action or effect. Take Beecham's Pills for example. For over 70 years Beecham's has been a household word all over the world. 70 years of use by all sorts of folks, men, women and even children, have proven first, that Beecham's Pills do what is claimed for them; second, that they are harmless, do not produce bad effects. Some medicine forces Nature to unnatural action. Other medicines, like those contained in Beecham's Pills assist Nature, act mildly, persuade and hence produce no harmful effects. It is common to find families in which Beecham's have been used by several generations, their use handed down from father to son and from mother to daughter.

That's the best possible recommendation for any remedy. Every druggist sells Beecham's, is glad to do so because he knows that their reputation has been won by merit.

MILK SHORTAGE THREATENS BOSTON

Lack Will Be Felt if Hoods and Producers Fail to Reach Agreement

Boston is threatened with a shortage of milk, if H. P. Hood & Sons and the New England Milk Producers' Association do not come to an agreement on price, according to other dealers, their firms will not be able to supply the city on such short notice.

The ultimatum of the producers gives the Hood firm until tomorrow to say whether or not it will pay 9 cents a quart demanded. The company is holding out for 8½ cents, announcing a reduction to consumers from 15½ to 15 cents a quart.

J. K. Whiting, treasurer of C. Brigham Company, said today that if the producers and H. P. Hood & Sons do not agree, and the latter is not able to secure milk elsewhere than from the farmers controlled by the association, many homes in Boston will not be supplied with milk.

"It is impossible for the other dealers to take over the Hoods' customers on ten hours' notice," he said. "It takes time to build up an organization like H. P. Hood & Sons' and the other dealers in Boston would not be able to divide up the business at once. Many homes will be out of milk for some time, if Hood does not distribute."

Charles F. Whiting, manager of D. Whiting & Sons, said his firm would not be able to handle the increased business on such short notice. He declared the nine cents demands by the producers to be reasonable, and said it was fortunate for consumers that the price has not been raised, as it customary at this time of year.

In announcing intention to stop delivering milk to H. P. Hood & Sons, if they do not pay nine cents a quart, the Producers' Association promises to try to avert a shortage.

AUTO REGISTRY SHIFT APPROVED BY COUNCIL

The Governor's council held a meeting at which it approved the plans submitted by John J. Cole, commissioner of public works, for the use of a part of Commonwealth Pier, South Boston, by the Division of Registration of his department. At its meeting six weeks ago, the council approved the proposition of Mr. Cole, contingent upon his submitting plans. With the plans approved, the change can be made. Commissioner Cole said the transfer of the auto registry division to the Pier would be made between Nov. 1 and 15.

LEWIS S. PILCHER MAY BE GRAND ARMY CHIEF

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 29.—Veterans of the Civil War and the Republic planned to wind up the business sessions of their fifty-fifth annual encampment today by electing officers and selecting the city in which they will gather for their next meeting. Lewis S. Pilcher of Brooklyn, N. Y., past commander of the department of New York, is the veteran who has announced his candidacy for the office of commander-in-chief to succeed William E. Ketcham of Indianapolis. Mr. Pilcher's election seems certain.

T. F. PHELAN TO HEAD ROSE CROIX COUNCIL

Rose Croix Council, Knights of Columbus, today announced the election of Thomas F. Phelan, a Boston newspaper man, as grand knight for the coming year. The election, forty consecrated, was held in the new council building at Warren and Dudley streets, Roxbury. Other officers elected were Deputy Grand Knight Peter L. Kelly, Chancellor John D. Casey, Warden Russell Masterson, Financial Secretary James W. Hennigan, Treasurer Joseph H. McElroy and Recording Secretary William F. Doolan.

WELLESLEY CLASSES JOIN IN GROUP "SING"

The three upper classes at Wellesley College continued one of their old college customs by holding a group "sing" on the steps of Houghton Memorial Chapel. Each of the three classes sang with selected song leaders, while the freshmen grouped themselves in the open space before the steps and listened.

LARRY ST. JOHN OF CHICAGO TRIBUNE DEAD

Chicago, Sept. 29.—The death of Larry St. John, conductor of a hunting and fishing column in the Chicago Tribune, was announced today. He died Sunday in the North Woods. His death is the second recently of a Tribune column conductor, following that of Bert Leston Taylor, of the "Line o' Type or Two."

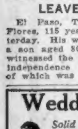

CONDUCTOR HURT BY FALL AT CLIFTONDALE

Herman Barney of No. 21 Pembroke street, Somerville, narrowly escaped death today when he fell between two cars of a Boston & Maine train at Cliftondale Station. Barney, a conductor, jumped from the train before it stopped. Doctors found he had a broken kneecap.

AS HARMONY SEES FIREMEN'S LEADERS

"VIGILANTES" IN SAUGUS SHOT AT BY SPOONER

Resenting the attempts of a self-appointed anti-spooning squad to interfere with his love-making in an auto, hidden in the dark shadows of Bristow street, Saugus, an angry swain pulled a gun and fired two shots at the members of the league.

No one was hit by the bullets, and the autoist, after the fusillade, put on gas and sped off in the direction of Revere before the number of his machine could be taken.

Recently citizens residing in the vicinity of Bristow street have been annoyed by frequent visits of autoists, who park their cars in the shadows and carry on their lovemaking in a manner to disconcert the Saugusites.

Consequently these irate citizens formed a band to put a stop to the spooning. Last night was their first attempt at interfering with a love-making couple and they were repulsed by bullets.

Retreat in Arlington

A week's retreat is being held at St. Agnes' Church, Arlington. The Rev. Fr. Stanton, S. J., is in charge of the retreat and preaches each evening. The services are being well attended.

In the completion of the high pressure system, Boston is now practically insured against serious fires, according to Commissioner John H. Murphy, who welcomed the several hundred delegates to the forty-second annual convention of the Massachusetts State Firemen's Association in Faneuil Hall.

Commissioner Murphy also declared the most important duty of a fireman was to prevent fires rather than to put them out. Boston, he said, was a badly-built city and the many wooden houses made a serious fire risk.

Other speakers at the first session were Chief Peter E. Walsh of Boston and Chief John F. Doyle of Wellesley.

BROOKLINE AUTOIST INJURED IN OVERTURN

Newburyport, Sept. 29.—William P. Brewster of Brookline was severely injured when an automobile he was driving from this city toward Haverhill skidded on Sawyer's Hill and turned over, pinning him beneath the car. He was released by two workmen, John J. Mahoney and Edward Sweeney, and taken to the local hospital in a passing automobile. It was found that he had a broken collar bone and injuries to his head and minor cuts and bruises. His car was badly wrecked.

ROXBURY MAN HURT BY FALL IN STREET

Peter Smith, fifty years old, of No. 35 Robey street, Roxbury, while walking along Washington street last night became suddenly ill and fell to the sidewalk, striking his head against the curbstone. He was taken to the City Hospital suffering from a possible fracture of the skull. His name was placed on the danger list.

DRIVES PLANE 40,800 FEET UP IN AIR

Dayton, O., Sept. 29.—Lieutenant John A. Macready, of the United States Army Air Service, has established a new world's record for altitude by driving his Le Pere battleplane 40,800 feet (about 7¾ miles) above sea level in one of the most thrilling flights in the annals of aviation.

He also made a new world's record for the rapidity of the tremendous climb, reaching the peak of his flight one hour and thirty minutes after leaving the experimental air station at McCook Field, near here.

The last 3,000 feet of the climb were achieved under the severest conditions to which any human being has ever been subjected. Lieutenant Macready ascended in a temperature more than 60 degrees below zero.

'BATH SCENE' IN PLAY BARRED IN SPRINGFIELD

Censors Condemn Sight in "Ladies' Night" as Vulgar and Suggestive

Springfield, Sept. 29.—The secret of why so many Springfield men and youth have deserted their jobs in the afternoon and had "to go to the lodge" in the evening, was revealed today when Police Chief William J. Quilty and his censor board censored most of act two in "Ladies Night," a musical comedy playing at the Court Square Theatre.

The police chief opined the Turkish bath scene was too much, far too much for even a blase "New Yorker" to view, and intimated the fair damsels in this particular scene were "attired" in little more than question marks.

The official report declared the scene "vulgar and suggestive."

The comedy, written by Avery Hopwood, and played by a road company, opened here Monday for a week's engagement, matinee and evening.

The theatre's seating capacity of 1,100 was taxed the first three days and lines of waiting men and women were turned away at the box office.

At yesterday afternoon's performance "Ladies' Night" was viewed by 1,475 men. The males requisitioned seats ahead for the Wednesday matinee, greatly to the discomfort of the gentler sex who had made an unsuccessful drive for seats, and then termed the man "hoggish" and "horrid."

LEAGUE NOT TO ASK CREDITS FOR RUSSIA

Geneva, Sept 29.—(By the Associated Press)—Recommendation to the members for credits to Russia will not be made by the Russian Relief Committee, it was announced here today. The mater of securing funds for Russia and the organization of relief measures will be left entirely to the conference to be held in Brussels, and to the welfare organizations. The reason given for this decision by the committee was that various governments had found it impossible to open new credits at this time.

TO ASK LIFTING OF BAN ON MAYFLOWER

J. Henry Hunt, chairman of the directors of the Mayflower Association, started for Halifax, N. S., today in a final effort to induce the trustees of the North Atlantic Fishermen's International Trophy to reconsider their refusal to allow the Boston fishing schooner to compete as defender of the Fishermen's Cup, won last fall by the Gloucester schooner Esperanto.

The Boston Daily Advertiser employs as many photographers as some newspapers have editors and reporters, includes among its regular contributors S. E. Kiser, "K. C. B.", Fay King, Dr. Royal S. PUBLIC HEARING TONIGHT ON CHARLESTOWN TANK

The question of allowing the General Baking Company to erect a 1,000-gallon gasoline tank on its property at Tremont, Perrin and Edgeworth streets, Charlestown, will be threshed out at a public meeting tonight in Frothingham School Hall, Prospect street, Charlestown, by the Boston City Council. Residents of the neighborhood are insistent that the permit for the tank be withheld.

EDES DENIES ALL CHARGES MADE BY SQUIER

Plymouth Man Says He Gave Shipping Clerk's Wife Only Inexpensive Gifts

A single lapel pin, an occasional bouquet and a box or candy once in a while were the only gifts he gave Mrs. Bessie Squier, declaren Alton B. Edes, wealthy Plymouth man, in replying to the allegations made in the complaint filed by Mrs. J. Squier, a shipping clerk, employed by the Curtis-Pope Lumber company, who is suing Edes for $50,000, alleging alienation of Mrs. Squier's affections. Edes denies empathically the allegations made by her husband, that he and Mrs. Squire were guilty of improper conduct in the course of a trip which he admits having made in her company to New York.

He declares they took the same train to Manhattan because both of them had to go there on business and preferred making the journey in congenial company to traveling alone.

FULLER OFFERS OUTING TO DISABLED VETERANS

Lieutenant Governor Alvan T. Fuller has extended to Dr. Eugene McCarthy, of Malden, chairman of the hospitalization committee of the American Legion, an invitation to take several disabled veterans to his Summer home at Rye Beach, and treat them to a clambake. He also informed Dr. McCarthy that he would subscribe $500 to the fund being raised to assist the disabled veterans.

$3,000 INCENDIARY FIRE IN HYDE PARK

The Store of Individuality

HAVE RETAIL PRICES COME DOWN?

FOR the past six months our customers have been remarking to our sales people and commenting to the members of our firm upon the reasonable prices at which they are now able to procure Whitney quality merchandise, and their surprise has been so evident that prices have really been revised that we feel the above question is worthy of an answer.

A few items taken at random from our regular stocks which are in no way "specials." We consider them representative of our entire stock on which we find the following comparisons:

Article	Price July, 1920	Price Now
White Linen, 36 inches wide	$3.75 a yard	$2.00
Natural Colored Linen, 18 inches	$1.25 a yard	.50
Linen Dish Towelling	.80 a yard	.45
Colored Handkerchief Linen	$3.00 a yard	$1.50
Linen Huckaback Towels (hemstitched)	$2.00 each	$1.00
Turkish Towels	75c, $1.50	37½¢, 75¢
Men's All Linen Handkerchiefs (hemstitched)	50c to $1.25	25¢ to 85¢
Women's All Linen Handkerchiefs	60c	29¢
Table Cloths	$15.00 to $50.00	$7.50 to $25
Napkins	$12.00 and up	$6.75 and up
Sheets	$3.60 each	$2.00 each
Plaid Blankets	$20.00 a pair	$10.00
Cretonnes	$1.00 a yard	40¢

The same applies to Neckwear, Yarns, Art Embroideries, Wash Goods, Overdrapes and Curtains. In no case has quality been sacrificed; always up to the Whitney Standard.

Fourth day of the Boston American's $1,500 Name-this-Auto Test.

Picture No. 4.

Having any trouble? No? Good! One splendid thing about the Name-this-Auto Test is that it will never be much use, if any difficult than you find it in the beginning.

In a Title Test, with the artist cooperating, it is sometimes well to begin "easy." The Name-this-Auto Test is a different proposition. We have purposely not begun with the cars MOST numerous in this section in order that no reader may feel that he was brought into the competition by false pretenses. If your score is perfectly clean up to and including today's picture, your chances of ultimate success are as good as anybody else's.

A lot depends, to be sure, on the value of the Walk Right-Drive Right suggestion you make — the limit is not less than fifty or more than one hundred words—in the essay (or letter) you will send in at the close of the Test.

This $1,500 Test will cover a fifty-day period. Sundays not included. There will be fifty pictures. Participants are required to identify (name) the different cars. The top award is $500 in cash. All the awards, by the way, will be paid in cash. Checks should be coming with your Thanksgiving dinner.

The money might be won! So far as the Boston American is concerned, it may just as well be yours as some other person's. Can you name the cars? Know today's? This car you have seen time and time again. It has been driven and advertised for some time. It has distinctive lines. It does not look like any other car. You should have mighty little trouble in writing its name.

Fifty cars will be shown, remember, each true to life and each easily identified.

If you do not know what this particular car is, it will not take long to find out. Stand on the curb a few minutes and wait until one of them comes along. It will!

Forty-six cars to come. You will get a lot of fun finding out exactly how many different makes you can name at first sight!

When it comes time to write the Walk Right-Drive Right essay, remember that what is wanted is your idea of how best to reduce the number of accidents on the highways of New England. This is everybody's business. All should help. You have given expression to your views on the subject more than once. Reduce them to writing. If there is something worth while in them they may decide the name to be written on the Boston American's check for Five Hundred Dollars.

There are ninety-seven awards, by the way, and all of them must be won.

Another automobile picture tomorrow.

Tell your friends.

Do not send this in before the end of the Test.

RULES OF "NAME-THE-AUTO" CONTEST

Following are the rules which must be observed by those who desire to take part in this unique experiment:

The Boston American's Name-this-Auto competition is a test of knowledge and judgment open to all readers of the Boston American, irrespective of age, living in any city or town in New England or Canada.

Ninety-four awards, with a total value of $1,500, will be paid in cash at the close of the competition.

On each weekday, for fifty days, there will appear in the Boston American a drawing of an automobile. The name-plate of the car will not be shown in the picture. Participants in the Test will be asked to identify the automobiles thus shown. In addition, they will be asked to submit, at the end of the test, an essay on the subject of "Walk Right—Drive Right," to consist of not less than fifty nor more than one hundred words.

Participation in any other feature of its kind in the Boston American in the past will not bar anybody from entering this one. The only persons barred are employes of the Boston American (and other Hearst publications) and members of their families.

Every participant will be permitted to submit one set of pictures, but each set must contain only one title for each picture. No participant will be entitled to more than one award, and not more than one award will be given to any one family.

Answers must be neatly written, typewritten or printed, on the coupon (or a copy thereof) supplied by the Boston American and must be accompanied by either the automobile picture printed in the Boston American or a pen or pencil copy thereof.

Each answer must have the name, address, etc., of the participant written on the blank furnished.

Do not send in your answers in "list" form; that is, do not write the names of the automobiles one under another, on a sheet or paper. Use the coupon or a copy of it.

Do not under any circumstances send in any answers before the end of the Test. Keep your answers from day to day. At the end of the test arrange them in numerical order and then send them in in one package at one time.

Time will not be a factor in making the awards. The first set of answers sent in when the Test is over will not be considered more favorably than the last.

All answers must be sent to the Name-this-Auto Editor of the Boston American within a specified time limit, which will be announced later.

A complete set of answers must be submitted, together with a "Walk Right-Drive Right" suggestion.

All envelopes or packages containing the answers and suggestions must be legibly addressed as follows:

"Name-this-Auto Editor, Boston American, No. 80 Summer street, Boston (9), Mass."

Each envelope or package must have the name and address of the sender legibly written or stamped in the upper left-hand corner.

It is absolutely necessary that all envelopes or packages containing answers or suggestions be sent fully prepaid at POSTAL LETTER RATES. Mail of this character is classified by the Post Office as first class matter. The Boston American reserves the right to refuse to consider any sets of answers sent by mail upon which charges for postal delivery are not fully prepaid.

The Boston American reserves the right to make any changes in or additions to these conditions that it may deem necessary in order to conduct this test fairly and properly.

The Boston American's decision on any question which may arise in the test and regarding the final awards to be final. The entry of a participant is a complete acceptance of all conditions or regulations now made or to be made.

SALEM GIRL IS FOUND DYING FROM GAS

Accidental Opening of Jet Believed to Be Cause of Near Fatality

Found unconscious from gas poisoning in the bedroom of her home at No. 11 Orchard street, Salem, eighteen-year-old Thalia Stanchfield was rushed to the Salem Hospital where it is said she will recover.

The Salem police eliminated the suicide attempt theory after questioning Mrs. Irene Stanchfield, the girl's mother. Mrs. Stanchfield told the police that Thalia had retired to her room to lay down. A younger sister, Beatrice, had been in the habit of hanging her blouse on the gas jet, she said.

While Thalia was asleep, Beatrice took her blouse off the jet, and doing so, the mother said, must have accidentally opened the gas jet. The girl had nearly overcome before she woke. She struggled as far as the door, where she fell unconscious.

Miss Flora G. Aouette, who lives with the family, discovered her there. First aid was rendered by Dr. Cornelius Ahearne.

Ellis Is Sure Rents Must Soon Take Drop Around Boston

Despite assertions made by some apartment house agents that rents will not be reduced here to correspond to 20 per cent. reductions being made in New York, Chairman Ellis of the Mayor's housing commission declared Boston rents must come down shortly, since there are now more vacant apartments here than at any other time in the history of the city.

The agents had insisted there were few vacant apartments in Boston, Chairman Ellis admitted that the local downward movement had not yet started.

SKIDDING BROCKTON AUTO INJURES FOUR

Brockton, Sept. 28.—Four young people, two girls and two men, were slightly injured when the automobile in which they were riding on the Swamp road near here skidded and overturned, throwing them into a ditch. The girls were treated at Brockton hospital. Those in the accident were Margaret Sheehan of Montello street, Brockton, Elizabeth Welch of James street, Brockton, and Francis Kilbridge and Percy LaCrosse, both of Bridgewater.

SCHOOL STRIKE IS ENDED AT HAMILTON

Pupils Return After Threats of Being Taken to Court as Truants

Hamilton, Sept. 29.—On threat of being summoned into court on truancy charges, all of Hamilton's thirty striking pupils who walked from their classrooms Tuesday, have agreed to return to school today.

The pupils took "French leave," they declare, because the school hours were too long. They still maintain the school day is too long, because it prevents them from doing outside work, which is necessary if they are to continue in school any length of time.

Some of the pupils returned yesterday.

The pupils are still in hopes that a majority of the school board will change the present hours which are from 9 a. m. to 12, and 1 to 3:35 p. m. Pupils have petitioned the board for an 8:30 a. m. to 3 p. m. session but it is understood the board is split on the question.

Arthur B. Lord, the new school superintendent, and principal Elmwood S. Fraser, of the high school said to be in favor of the pupils' proposed new schedule.

Gains 25 Pounds— Feels Years Younger After Gland Pills

Mr. Hervey So Weak He Could Hardly Walk—Thanks Glandex for His Recovery.

"I was the victim of a nervous breakdown five years ago which left me in a bad run-down condition. I was so weak that I scarcely had strength to walk. My condition kept growing worse until I started taking these new gland pills that everyone is talking about. The results were so wonderful that I could hardly believe I was the same person. Today I feel like an entirely new man!" said Mr. George F. Hervey, a well known resident of Bridgeport, Conn., living at 134 Bond Street.

"I was always tired out, couldn't eat or sleep. But now, thanks to Glandex, I sleep like a log every night, work every day, and eat more than I ever did. My weight has increased 25 pounds and I feel as strong as an ox! I feel as if I could work 24 hours a day if I had to and cheerfully state that I feel years younger. Glandex certainly is a great tonic, and I recommend it to everyone."

Amazing Results Everywhere

The reason Glandex brings such amazing results is, as many claim it is because it helps build up run-down glands—which science now says are the cause of most run-down conditions. Glandex feeds run-down human glands with extracts taken from the glands of vigorous sheep and cattle. Practically on the same principle as re-charging a storage battery! Also contains iron and other well known blood builders.

If you, too, this or generally run-down try this remarkable tonic. Brings results or your money back. Has helped thousands to regain health and strength. Try a bottle! Sold at good druggists everywhere.

G. O. P. SENATE REPORT CLEARS NEWBERRY

Democrats Declare He Won by Corrupt Practices and Should Lose Seat

By Associated Press

Washington, Sept. 29.—Opinions conflicting along party lines were presented today by the majority and minority members of the Senate Privileges and Elections Committee on the Ford-Newberry 1918 senatorial election contest from Michigan.

The majority report cleared Senator Truman H. Newberry, the Republican candidate, of corruption and all other charges, and recommended that he be legally seated.

The Democratic members, on the contrary, asserted that Senator Newberry was elected by "corrupt and illegal methods and practices" and recommended that his seat be declared vacant.

With the filing of the reports the case now goes to the Senate for final decision, which will probably not be made for several weeks. In the meantime, it is understood, Senator Newberry will not attend the Senate sessions.

AGAINST FORD.

On only two major issues were the Republicans and Democrats in harmony in the reports filed today. They agreed that Henry Ford, the Democratic contestant, had not been elected and was not entitled to the seat from Michigan. They also agreed that too much money had been spent in the 1918 Michigan primary. The Democrats, however, contended that Senator Newberry was responsible personally for the expenditures, while the Republicans held he was not.

Recommendations of the majority report, submitted by Senator Spencer, said:

"That Newberry's qualification for a seat in the Senate has been conclusively established, and the charges made against him are not sustained."

MINORITY REPORT.

Conclusions of the minority, presented by Senator Pomerene, Democrat, Ohio, and signed also by Senators King, Utah, and Ashurst, Arizona, follow:

"We find that corrupt and illegal methods and practices were employed at the primary election and that Newberry violated the corrupt practices act and the primary act of the State of Michigan, and that he ought not to have or hold a seat in the Senate, and that he is not the duly elected Senator from the State of Michigan."

A separate minority report also was submitted by Senator Ashurst, who declared Senator Newberry's credentials were "stained by fraud and tainted by illegal expenditures of money." The testimony showed, he said, that the 1918 Michigan campaign "partook more of the character of an auction than an election."

ST. ALBANS SETTLES FONDA ESTATE SUIT

St. Albans, Vt., Sept. 29.—After a six-year battle, the city of St. Albans will receive a part of the $50,000 in back taxes from the W. B. Fonda estate. The settlement, it is reported, is considerably less than the $50,000 that was awarded the city by the State Supreme Court and the Franklin County Court. The estate, alleging the property was not taxable, having been transferred to the Old Colony Trust Company of Boston, was prepared to carry the battle to the United States Supreme Court.

SOCIETY HAPPENINGS OF GREATER BOSTON

Plans for Woman's Day at Copley-Plaza Under Way

By BETTY ALDEN.

No end of real features have been planned for the Woman's Day at the Copley-Plaza taking place November 16, when members of the fairer sex will take over entire charge and operation of the hotel. The affair, which is absolutely unique, promises to be one of the most important charity functions ever planned, the idea being to raise funds to aid in the building and maintenance of a home for incurables on the Frances Willard Farm, better known as Llewac Lodge, Bedford, Mass.

Several hundred of Boston society women are working hard to make November 16 a memorable day, and to judge by the large number of "first family" names which head the various committees, I should say that the benefit will not be forgotten from a social standpoint.

Not only will the running of the hotel be in charge of prominent women, but every available space will be used for different forms of entertainment—that's where the clever features come in. Speaking of these features, one of the most important will be the First Fashion Exhibition in Boston of Lady Duff Gordon. However, that is but one of the many events planned to tempt the eye, and incidentally wheedle extra cash from the crowds which undoubtedly will flock to the Copley-Plaza on Woman's Day.

That there will be crowds is certain, for few Bostonians will forego the novelty of seeing members of the exclusive Chilton and Vincent Clubs, as well as members of the Sewing Circle, play the role of clerks, doorman, bellboys—or perhaps I should say "bellgirls"—waitresses and newsstand girls.

The managing director is Mrs. Frederick S. Blodgett and the associate managers are Mmes. Nathaniel Thayer, Robert W. Lovett and Lars Anderson. The list of assistant managers include the following: Mmes. Charles Sumner Bird, George Minot Baker, Charles H. Bond, Cyrus E. Dallin, J. Malcolm Forbes, Herbert J. Gurney, Roland Hopkins, George S. Mumford, Franklin P. Shumway, Sullivan Sargent and Frank E. Stewart.

Philip Wharton of No. 169 Beacon street numbers among the late arrivals at the Curtis Hotel in Lenox. Mr. Wharton is a graduate of Harvard, class of '15.

From Newport comes the interesting news that Dr. and Mrs Alexander Hamilton Rice are closing "Mirimar," their Summer estate, next Wednesday. Dr. and Mrs. Rice, who have done considerable entertaining during their sojourn at the Rhode Island watering place, are sailing abroad October 12.

Mrs. Oliver H. P. Belmont is chairman of the woman's committee of the Victory ball which has been arranged for November 10, the eve of Armistice Day, in the Waldorf-Astoria, under the auspices of the various New York posts of the American Legion.

Mrs. Calvin Coolidge has selected next Tuesday for the reassembling of the "Ladies of the Senate," a wartime organization established in the last Administration by Mrs. Thomas R. Marshall and the wives and daughters of Senators. Mrs. Coolidge, who succeeded to the presidency of the society by virtue of her husband's office, will propose a plan of work for the season.

POISON IN FLOUR CAME FROM CAR SCRAPINGS

The flour that made Nathan H. Mudgett, his wife and 12-year-old son of Concord, N. H., ill when they ate cake made from it contained eight per cent. of arsenate of lead, Dr. George H. Adams, of the Federal Pure Food Department here, revealed today after an alnysis. Dr. Adams, viewing the fact that others bought the same bag, said that probably the bag broke in a railroad car and in scraping up some of the flour poison was picked up.

Miss Frances Ranlet will be married on Saturday to Mr. John L. Lincoln, the ceremony taking place at 4 o'clock at St. Paul's Cathedral. Miss Ranlet is the daughter of Mrs. Charles Ranlet of No. 23 West Cedar street. Mr. Lincoln is a Harvard, '19, man.

VESSELS CRASH AT GLOUCESTER IN HEAVY FOG

Ships Held Up Here for Hours, Captains Being Afraid of Endangering Craft

Two vessels were in collision in Gloucester Harbor today. Scores of other vessels were held up for hours in port or at sea as the result of a dense fog off the coast.

The ships in collision were the Gloucester steamship City of Gloucester and an unidentified coal barge.

The City of Gloucester came upon the barge in mid-channel, and struck her a glancing blow. The steamer's bow was stove in above the waterline, and she arrived in Boston several hours late. She will be hauled out for repairs.

Captain Fred Pray of the City of Gloucester declared that the barge was not sounding fog signals. He did not learn her identity. The fog was the thickest encountered on the New England coast this Fall.

The steamships Glendoyle, from Marcoula, the Harold Walker, from Tampico, and the Cold Harbor, from Portland, were halted for several hours off the lightship in the lower harbor, their commanders fearing to attempt to pass through the traffic on the way to their piers.

HELD FOR BREAK IN HEMENWAY ST. STORE

Charles Davis of Hemenway street waived examination when arraigned before Judge Ahern in the Roxbury court today, charged with breaking and entering the store of Anthony Zeigel, corner of Hemenway and Westland avenue, and was held for the Grand Jury in $2,400.

FIND WOMAN'S BODY IN NEW YORK CLOSET

Police Seek "Mr. Fay" and Couple Who Occupied Room in Lodging House

By Associated Press.

New York, Sept. 29.—Detectives today were trying to trace a couple known as Mr. and Mrs. Boulanger, who, it is believed, lived for several days, unwittingly, in a room where the body of a young woman friend—murdered—had been stored.

The body, packed away in newspapers, was found last night in an unused closet of a lodging house room the Boulangers had occupied. A cloth gag had been tied into the woman's mouth with a white stocking. The date of one of the newspapers, September 21, is believed to fix the time of the murder.

The Boulangers did not quit the room until last Monday—four days later. Other lodgers said they thought the Boulangers had gone to Montreal.

The murdered woman was known at the lodging house only as "Mrs. Fay."

Son of George as Irish King Joke to Sinn Fein

By International News Service.

New York, Sept. 29.—Frank P. Walsh, one of America's foremost Irish American leaders, who has just returned from a visit to Ireland, dismissed as trivial today the suggestion emenating from British sources that a way out of the Irish dilemma might be found in naming ope of King George's sons as monarch of Ireland.

"That will never happen as long as the Irish have a sense of humor," Mr. Walsh said. "That suggestion was a source of great merriment to the Irish."

FIVE KILLED IN NEW JERSEY EXPLOSION

Salvaging Crew at Perth Amboy Plant Are Victims of Gun Cotton

By International News Service.

Perth Amboy, N. J., Sept. 29.—Five men were killed instantly and three others wounded today when explosives that were being loaded on a truck at Parlin blew up.

The explosion was in the plant of the E. I. Dupont de Nemours Company. The dead and injured men were employed by the George Harris Salvage Company of Morristown, N. J.

John Harris, Jr., a contractor, who was wounded, was removed from the scene in a dying condition. A series of explosions occurred, the shock being felt ten miles away at New Brunswick.

What to Serve at 5 o'clock Tea

Every hostess has her own particular tea-table fancies. They vary from simple bread and butter sandwiches to the most elaborate little cakes and fancy crackers.

All agree, however, that most important of all is really good tea—tea that your guests will enjoy and remember.

And it is for this reason that La Touraine is so often the tea found on those tables where people of fastidious taste gather. A certain little secret of blending developed through much study and long experience gives to La Touraine a flavor, an aroma, a refreshing goodness unlike any other tea you may have tasted.

Try La Touraine Tea just once. Until you have made this test you cannot know how wonderfully good tea can be. La Touraine Tea is on sale at practically all good grocery stores throughout New England. Look for the La Touraine sign or the La Touraine package on the shelves of your dealer.

"As Good As La Touraine Coffee"

24½ Million Dollars Invested by Employes of Swift & Company

More than 21,000 employes of Swift & Company own or are paying for shares in the business. These men and women have attested their faith in the integrity and good will of the company by investing their savings in the business.

Their holdings represent a total of nearly 250,000 shares, the par value ($100 a share) of which is more than $24,500,000.

These 21,000 represent more than one-third of our average number of employes!

One man out of every three, in plant, office, and branch house, from the handworker on the floor to the brainworker at the desk, working with us as well as for us; devoting himself to his own business while devoting himself to ours; promoting his own interests in every motion or moment saved, in every product improved or maintained at perfection, in every service rendered through prompt, thorough, effective distribution of products.

This interested, eager group of fellow partners working with us for the good of Swift & Company and the public which we serve, constitutes one-half of the ownership of Swift & Company in point of numbers, and nearly one-sixth in point of shares outstanding.

It represents practical and successful progress toward the end at which enlightened modern industry is aiming for the solution of industrial problems—toward cooperation, mutuality, brotherhood in business, for the good of all.

SEEKS TO FORCE INCOME TAX FROM KLAN

Congressman Ryan Offers Resolve to Punish Officers for Evasion

Washington, Sept. 29.—Congressional action to force the Ku Klux Klan to pay income taxes to the Federal government and punish any of its leaders found responsible for erroneous returns is demanded today. The plan is crystalized in a resolution introduced in the House by Representative Thomas J. Ryan of New York city.

The resolution also provides for a sweeping investigation of the activities of the Invisible Empire and recommendations by the investigating committee for "the proper disciplinary action."

Charges that proper tax returns have not been made on the "vast sums of moneys" taken in by the organization; that it is un-American in spirit and that "as a necessary incident of its existence issue propaganda of religious bigotry and racial hatred" are made in the resolution.

TEXT OF RESOLUTION.

The text follows:

"Press reports set forth that the Ku Klux Klan have organized a campaign against selected groups of American citizens, reviving a tradition of secretive and cowardly violence and lawlessness.

"The Ku Klux Klan has, by the use of large and would-be-hidden force of expert organizers, reached a financial position where it can undertake a $100,000 national advertising campaign.

"The Ku Klux Klan, whose legal title is 'Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, Inc.', have utilized great amounts of money to build palaces for their presiding officers.

"The income tax reports do not show the proper returns for the vast sums of moneys realized by this organization, and makes no mention of the enormous profits derived from the sale of material and paraphernalia.

UN-AMERICAN IN SPIRIT.

"The Ku Klux Klan is an organization that is un-American in its spirit and as a necessary incident of its existence, issues propaganda of religious bigotry and racial hatred.

"Therefore, be it resolved, that a committee be appointed by this body to investigate the activities of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan and to recommend, if necessary, after such investigation, the proper disciplinary action.

"Resolved further, that the necessary action be taken by the House of Representatives of the United States of America to order an examination of the financial condition of the said Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, Inc., in order that just and proper returns be filed with the collector of internal revenue in the proper district and that the true and just amount of taxes be paid; and that the proper disciplinary action be taken against the individuals responsible for making out the erroneous returns.

BUSINESS MEN PLAN TO ENLARGE SCOUTS' CAMP

One hundred and forty boys have had the "time of their lives" this Summer at the Boy Scout camp at Framingham. And, as a result of the benefit they have gained, learning woodcraft, road building, etc., a number of Boston business men have enlisted their active support in a plan to carry on the work next year on even a greater scale.

KLAN FIGURED ON $5,950,000 MORE GRAFT

Promoters Added Another Degree — the Fifth — to Lure Members' Cash

By S. ANDERSON WRIGHT.
Former Grand Goblin, King Kleagle, Ku Klux Klan and Chief of Staff, Invisible Planet, Knights of the Air.

(Copyright, 1921, by N. Y. American.)

New York, Sept. 29.—There are four degrees to the Invisible Empire, Knights of the Ku Klux Klan.

They cost $10 per degree, or a total of $40.

Members were rather slow in taking the upper degrees, so the wise heads of the secret order at Atlanta fixed a fifth degree as a goal to be reached by way of the second, third and fourth degrees.

The fifth degree is the Knights of Mirth.

GRAFT UNLIMITED.

I am a Knight of Mirth, having received the degree at the same time as Imperial Kleagle Clarke.

The possibilities of graft for Mrs. Tyler and Clarke were unlimited, surpassed only by the Knights of the Air.

First there was the "donation," or in'tiation fee, of $50, for the new degree was to be exclusive. Yet Mrs. Tyler and Clarke thought to get as much money out of it with few members as out of any of the lesser degrees with their many members. He aimed for a mere 500,000.

Let us discount Clarke's estimate of possible membership of 500,000 and bring it down to 100,000, which I think within the range of possibility.

The initiation fees for 100,000 members would amount to $5,000,000.

$2,000,000 ON REGALIA.

The regalia at $20 for ordinary members would total $2,000,000, and this does not take into consideration the more expensive regalia for officers.

Then the equipment for Temples of Mirth, say 100, which would total $500,000 at the lowest.

Mrs. Tyler and Clarke intended paying $10 to Kleagles (salesmen) which would leave a net profit on initiations of $4,000,000.

Figure the robes at $3 each wholesale, leaving a profit of $17 per robe, or a total of $1,700,000.

As to the equipment for Temples, Mrs. Tyler and Clarke have never figured on a basis of less than 100 per cent. Using this figure we find a net profit of $250,000.

The grand total of profit for the first year would be $5,950,000.

MAYFLOWER AFFIDAVITS ARE TAKEN TO HALIFAX

J. Henry Hunt, chairman of the directors of the Mayflower Association, has gone to Halifax today to interview the trustees of the International Fishing Vessel Trophy. He took with him several affidavits to the effect that the fishing schooner Mayflower, which the trustees will not permit to race for the cup this year, is a bona fide fishing vessel, and that she complies in spirit and in fact with the provisions of the deed of gift for the cup.

PEACE PACT BY STILLMANS IS DENIED

"Fifi" Will Not Forgive Her Husband, Counsel for Wife Definitely States

Yonkers, N. Y., Sept. 29.—John F. Brennan, counsel for Mrs. "Fifi" Stillman, said yesterday there was no possibility of a reconciliation between Mrs. Stillman and her husband, James A. Stillman.

Asked as to the possibility of a reconciliation, in view of published reports that Mr. Stillman had reserved a room for Mrs. Stillman in his new apartment, and had failed to return to her household goods which were solely her property, Mr. Brennan said:

"You can deny the story for me and you can say further that there is no possibility of a reconciliation."

Mrs. Stillman, who is reported to have become reconciled with her daughter, Anne, will go to Montreal, her attorneys said, if hearings in pending divorce proceedings are shifted across the border. They intimated that Supreme Court Justice Morschauser might be asked to appoint a commission to take testimony in Canada.

GIRL ROUGH RIDER IN DARING SADDLE STUNTS

FEATURING GOVERNOR'S DAY

No less daring than the aerial exhibition was that of Tillie Baldwin at the Waltham Fair, where Middlesex Day is being observed on the second day of the program today. Below is seen the prize winning cow, Bride's Princess, valued at $2,000 and owned by G. F. White of Westford.

20,000 ATTEND WALTHAM FAIR OPENING

More Thrills in Air and Horse Races Are Scheduled for Today

More than 20,000 people attended the opening day of the Waltham Fair, which promises to surpass in every detail the successful fair of last year.

Today was observed as Governor's Day. Governor Cox was an early visitor and after being formally received by Mayor George R. Beal and the entertainment committee of the Fair Association was escorted through various tents and exhibits. He was later entertained at the Waltham Country Club.

None of the features and events that go to make up the modern fair were lacking. Vaudeville shows were given throughout the day. The aerial stunts were thrilling, and the late afternoon performance of Melville in mid-air were particularly so.

The opening was a gala day for the Watch City. Stores, factories and schools closed for a half-day in order to allow the school children and workers to attend. Details of police from two cities, augmented by four members of the State Militia and the St. Charles Junior Patrol, kept the crowds well in hand.

Thursday will be observed as Middlesex Day, and the officials of all towns and cities of the county will attend as guests.

The principal features of each day are the horse show and horse races. These are conducted in the afternoon and yesterday attracted at least ten thousand visitors.

Winners of the show classes and races were as follows:

News of Motion Picture World

By FRIEDA DAVIS

GEORGE FAWCETT had just climbed out of his wheelchair as the curtain came down on the last act of "The Wren" at the Hollis Street Theatre the other afternoon and had twitched off his tousled grey wig when I went back-stage. He waved the wig in the air at the mention of the word "movies." "That's not movies!" he cried. "Seldom see anything like it in pictures.

"They say that things are faked right and left in films. Nothing in it! That's one thing I learned and learned for fair. There's more downright reality in screen playing and making than in any other sort of acting. Why—if I wore that in a picture everyone in the audience would holler, 'It's a wig!'

"When I first signed up to make pictures, I went out on the West coast. Everyone I met asked solicitously whether I thought I'd 'screen well' or not; whether I thought I had a 'screen face.' 'I dunno,' I told them, 'I'm just going over to the studio and have my picture taken. That's all I know.' There was an awful lot of talk about 'screening' going on. Do you ever hear it now? You do not. It's naturalness and reality that count.

"In my first picture I played

FIRST PLAYED "HEAVY."

"In my first picture I played the 'heavy'; a man who was working up a food trust. I had to walk around a big room and look like a crooked politician. The director made me march around a few feet and then struck such a pose as when "stout Cortez with all his men stood silent upon a peak in Darien" and stared at the Pacific. Again he walked a short distance and again struck his Napoleonic pose while two stage hands leaned on the set in the back of the stage and guffawed.

"That was that. We had a retake and I strolled around the room chewing a cigar and acting nonchalant. I took a whack at reality and saw what happened. Why, it was twice as convincing! So there you are.

"Here's another phrase you hear constantly, 'what the public wants.' It's only now that producers are beginning to realize just what it is the public does want. It wants personalities. All these years girls with pretty faces, with nothing much back of them, have been grabbed right and left and been made stars. How long have they lasted? Not long.

MORE THAN LOOKS.

"Griffith knows that more is needed than just good looks, and there are a few others who have known it, too, but the majority of companies are just realizing it.

"It's a curious thing, isn't it, that the greatest stars we have today, with some exceptions, of course, are those who have been in the business since the beginning and furthermore, that they were Griffith players in the first place?

"Take Mary Pickford, Constance and Norma Talmadge, Mae Marsh, Lillian and Dorothy Gish, Alma Rubens, for example. Thye got their first screen training under Griffith and were chosen for the screen by him. They have lived longer in the public estimation than almost any other actresses and they still hold the high places they first won. Few newcomers have sprung up to oust them.

MADE HIT ON STAGE.

"Last Winter an actress made a decided hit on the stage. Someone suggested her for the screen and Griffith arranged a meeting with her. After a few moments he left. When he was asked what he had decided regarding her fitness for the movies, he said: 'Great—but—cheek-bones too high.' Other producers scoffed at this and tried to make a go of her in pictures. She made several tries but in none of them did she really 'get over.'"

Here Mr. Fawcett started to chuckle. Then he looked up and said, "He's a great man, Griffith, and how he can get the most out of his players! A funny thing happened in his studio once.

"There was an actor—oh, a good enough player, not anything extraordinary, perhaps, but fair enough—and Griffith thought he'd be good for a small part in one of his pictures. He talked with the man, who wasn't especially keen on the idea of playing a 'bit.' Griffith gave him a searching look, waved his hand decidedly and exclaimed enthusiastically, 'YOU can do it! You've got the eyes—you know, irrepressible eyes that the part requires!'

SNAPPED UP "BIT."

"Did that chap take the 'bit'? He snapped it up and spent all his spare time running around to his friends, winking his eyes in their faces and explaining how Griffith said he had 'irrepressible eyes'!"

He threw back his head and laughed. He sounded in real life just as he looks on the screen as if he might sound. He chuckles infectiously and speaks with a dry humor.

"Yessir, it's personality that counts nowadays. Look at Constance Talmadge. I've played in a number of pictures with her and consequently know her pretty well. Why, she's a joy. It's not just her attractiveness, but her mind, her mannerisms, well, let's say it again, her personality. There's nothing snam about her, nothing up-stage or affected. She's a sincere, simple young girl. That's why she's such a success. She's the kind of girl everyone in the audience would like to know. That's what they want."

BEN TURPIN LIKES TO SHAKE HANDS

Oh, yes, Ben Turpin is as good a vaudeville star as he is an uproariously funny screen comedian. For Ben was in vaudeville long before he became Charlie Chaplin's rival on the screen. If you don't roar with delight at his antics on the stage at Gordon's Scollay Square Olympia Theatre next week, you'd better have a surgeon operate on your risibility.

Ben will appear in person four times each day—criss-cross eyes, rubber neck, funny make-up and all, to welcome his New England admirers. Fact is, Ben wants to shake the hand of friendship with all those who admire his art. And, by gosh, it is art with a big A. If you are skeptical look for yourself.

Paris, France.

PRACTICALLY all the courturiers at the Paris openings exhibited gowns in the luxurious velvet and fur combination, and some of the smartest daytime gowns were thus achieved. At the left, a one-piece costume is developed in hunter green velvet and trimmed with a squirrel panel at one side of the front. The fur is caught at the waistline with a bone buckle, into which the fabric of the bodice and the upper skirt is draped. The long sleeves and the high collar are edged with narrow squirrel bands, while the tricorn is matching fur.

A CAPE-WRAP that would be entirely of fur if it weren't for the thin slices of velvet inserted depicts the mode at its height. Soft mink skins used for the cape fall into folds with remarkable subtlety, and the fur skirt is as graceful as one of fabric could be. Downward pointed triangles of Byzantine red velvet are posed at the low waistline and a button of matching velvet fastens the crush collar.

Billionaire 'John D.' of Japan Stabbed to Death by Assassin

Tokio, Sept. 29. — Zantaro Yasuda, known as the Rockefeller of Japan, and one of the three wealthiest men of the empire, was murdered today by an assassin who secured an audience with him under the guise of soliciting funds.

Yasuda was stabbed to death. His fortune is estimated at a billion dollars. He was head of a dozen banks.

Boston the Hottest Place Today In New England

Go right on wearing your summer clothes. Forecaster Smith said today would be almost as warm as yesterday, with temperatures ranging above seventy-five degrees before sunset, and a humidity far above the normal.

In the western sections of the country the mercury is dropping and some places reported freezing during the night. Boston was the hottest place in New England today, with an early morning temperature of 67.

Local showers are predicted for tonight and tomorrow, with not much change in temperature, but with fresh southern winds to make the weather more bearable.

OBJECT TO THIRD STREET LOOP IN CAMBRIDGE

Officials Meet to Solve Elevated's Lechmere Square Terminal Problem

Following the protests of residents of Third street, East Cambridge, against the use of the thoroughfare as part of a loop for the proposed Elevated terminal in Lechmere square there was a conference of Cambridge city officials, members of the State Public Service Commission and counsel for the Elevated today.

Members of the City Council maintained that Second street should be used for the loop as it would cause less demoralization of traffic than the laying of tracks on Third street.

In support of their contention they produced a plan drawn up by City Engineer L. M. Hastings and based on the Second street route.

The Public Service Commissioners at the same time examined the plan of engineers for the Elevated, based on the Third street route. Then the commissioners suggested that the street railway engineers draw up a new plan in an effort to meet and satisfy the Cambridge city government. Cambridge City Council has already refused permission for the erection of the terminal in Lechmere square, by a vote of 14 to 1, but negotiations are in progress between the council and the Elevated lawyers.

Schwab Leaves $5 Tip for 50-Cent Breakfast

Washington, Sept. 29.—The cafeteria breakfast check amounted to 50 cents and the big man who had consumed that amount left a bill on the table as he made his way to the cashier's desk.

"These furriners don't get the combination," murmured the girl who was clearing the table and she hurried after him.

"Mister," she explained, "you've got to pay at the counter." She poked the bill at him.

"Yes, I know," he replied, "that," indicating the bill, "is for you."

The "furriner" was Charles M. Schwab, a little late on his way to the unemployment conference.

"It's a five," confided the girl to the cashier.

WILSON NOT TO WAR ON PEACE TREATY

Won't Take Active Part in the Fight, but Is Against Pact, Says Tumulty

By International News Service.

Washington, Sept. 29.—Former President Wilson has no intention of entering actively into the fight which certain Democratic Senators once closely associated with his administration are waging against ratification of the German, Austrian and Hungarian peace treaties according to Joseph P. Tumulty, his former secretary.

The Democratic Senators who recently discussed the treaty situation with Wilson were not sent for by him, but were seen by him after they had requested an interview, Tumulty said today. They included Senator Glass, former Secretary of the Treasury.

"You may be sure that Mr. Wilson will take no active part in the present treaty controversy," Tumulty said, "either by communicating his views to the Democratic leaders of the Senate or by a written statement of his attitude to the country.

"Of course Wilson is opposed to any treaty which proposes a separate peace with the central powers, and undoubtedly he informed the Democratic senators who saw him that his views in that respect have not undergone any change since he first expressed them months ago. But he will not actively interpose himself in anyway."

A number of Democratic senators who are still regarded as ardent adherents of the former President have expressed an inclination to vote against ratification since Wilson's opposition was communicated to them by those of their colleagues who saw him recently.

Some of them have said that they would not be surprised if Wilson suddenly took an active hand in the treaty fight and those Democratic leaders who favor ratification have indicated that they rather expected he would.

REALTY MAN HELD AS FUGITIVE FROM JUSTICE

Bernard R. Israel, twenty-nine years old, of Manadnock stret, Dorchester, engaged in real estate and insurance business with offices on Winter street, was today arraigned before United States Commissioner Hayes on a warrant charging him with being a fugitive from justice in Scranton, Pa. He pleaded not guilty and was held in $1,000 bail for a hearing Oct. 13. He is said to have ordered violins from mail order houses and never paid for them.

STRIKERS PICKETING S. SLATER MILLS

Webster, Sept. 29.—Strikers at the South Village Mills of S. Slater & Sons today answered the "don't give a ——" message of attitude hurled at them by General Manager Bartlett. "When you have them swearing your battle is more than three-quarters won" speakers at their mass meeting told them and today they went out to picket, with instructions to "avoid rough stuff." With the picking and carding department closed, it was pointed out that within two weeks the entire plant, with 1,250 workers, would be closed, owing to the shutting off of supply for the other rooms.

COUPLE HELD FOR DEATH OF WIFE'S TWO SONS

Albany, Ga., Sept. 29.—Glenn More Hudson and his wife, Mrs. Bennie Hudson, were indicted by the Grand Jury here today for the murder of Mrs. Hudson's two sons, Isaiah and Robert Temple, on the morning of July 12. Trial of the cases is expected to begin Monday, the husband to stand trial first.

The boys, sons of Mrs. Hudson's first husband, who was killed in action during the war, were found dead from pistol wounds at their home. Mrs. Hudson has charged her husband killed the boys and threatened her if she told of it.

Take Evans' Triple Phosphates With Meals Gain Several Pounds of Solid Stay-There Flesh

In one month's time EVANS' TRIPLE PHOSPHATES puts on several pounds of solid red blooded flesh and changes your weak, run-down, nervous, tired body into a strong, vigorous, robust one or money back.

Of course medical men are surprised and many are still unbelievers, but the fact is evident to every up-to-date pharmacist that Evans' Triple Phosphates will produce flesh without violent methods, face creams, daily massage or beauty torture.

In order to assimilate the nourishing food thin people daily take into the body and turn it into healthy, red blood corpuscles, the nerves that control the process of digestion and assimilation must be put in first-class shape, and that is one of the first things Evans' Triple Phosphates does.

Evans' Triple Phosphates comes in small tablet form; a ten days' treatment in each box, and one month's treatment is guaranteed to increase your weight at least several pounds, and in ten days make you feel like a new being, full of ambition, vigor and a desire to accomplish things. Macy Drug Co., Epstein Drug Co., Armstrong Drug Co., North Station Drug Store, Richardson Drug Store, Walker-Rintell's and all good druggists have agreed to supply Evans' Triple Phosphates and guarantee it to do just what is claimed for it, or money refunded.

Even though Evans' Triple Phosphates works wonders in all cases of nervous, digestive and blood troubles, don't take it unless you really to desire to put on flesh, gain weight.

Filene's—Blouses that add value to your suit

Siamese Twins—but peculiar ones!

OF COURSE you remember the Siamese Twins, who were joined together so that wherever one went the other must also go. Value and Style are Siamese Twins with this peculiarity:

Value cannot go anywhere without Style; but Style can go without Value!

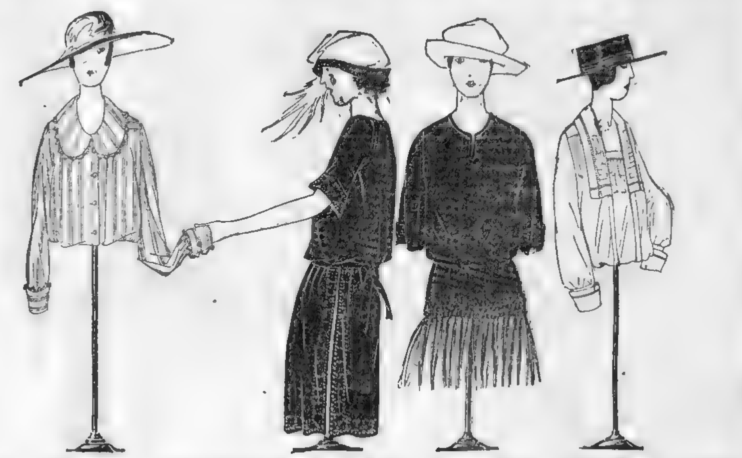

Fashion enters into everything in Modern Life; no one can fail to ignore its dictates.

The clothes we wear must be fashionable; the furniture in our homes must be either very new or very old (for both are fashionable).

So when Filene's talks of Value it means Style, too. It means to be exact. Just-Right Clothes at Just-Right Prices. In this way Value and Style are Siamese Twins.

But to prove that this rule doesn't work both ways, everyone has had the experience of finding Fashion that has not Value with it; Fashion that costs so much it takes your breath away.

Producing the New Things First and producing them at prices that bring them within your reach—that is Filene Value.

Tailored dimity blouses, $3 | Chenille-trimmed tunic blouses, $7.50 | Fringed mignonette overblouses, $5.75 | Porto Rican hand-made waists, $2

Introduced to Boston by Filene's

Crisp and efficient looking dimity blouses, with Irish picot, at $2, $3 and $4. Several styles with round "Bab" collar or deeper roll collar. Style sketched, $3.

With a slip this blouse becomes a dress. Frosty squares of white chenille on black, navy or brown tricolette, $7.50.

Very effective over a wool skirt because of the deep silk fringe. The popular slip-on style with short sleeves. Black, navy and brown mignonette, $7.50.

Whatever type of suit you wear, a hand-made waist will look well with it. The one sketched has "suit" collar and cuffs and much drawn work in squares, $2.

Here are some more INDIAN HEAD dresses $3

We wonder if women will ever stop buying them. Hundreds pass out of our store every week and hundreds more come in.

The sturdy, clear white fabric is one reason; the easy to launder Billie Burke style is another; and the low price is a third reason for the continued popularity of these dresses. Sizes 34 to 46. $3.

Filene's—mail orders filled—sixth floor

Two good styles in Canton crepe dresses $22.50

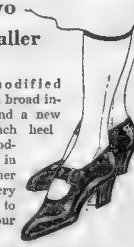

The style sketched boasts two very long silk tassels, one each side, "fagot" braid trimming, and the new loose sleeves.

The other style has slightly different sleeves and a side sash. Both styles in sizes 36 to 44 and both styles in black and navy. $22.50.

YUMPING YIMINY! Step aside and make room for Ragnar Holmberg, middleweight champion of Scandinavia, now gunning for Jonny Wilson's scalp!

GIVE YOU THREE GUESSES! What is this famous sculptor modeling? Nothing so prosaic as a pair of lungs. He is none other than Gustave Van Bouchaute, widely known anatomical artist, who shows you what your appendix is like—if you happen to have one. (K.)

A WINNING WINNER! Gertrude Olmstead, who won the Elks beauty contest and was promptly lured into the films, is one of the few who has "made good."

MORE TEARS FOR THE CROOK! The caption above is addressed to that pernicious parasite of society, the automobile thief. However, the invention by Dr. P. M. Miller of N. Y. of the device shown here will reduce their traffic to a minimum. By placing a diamond shaped disc in the device, set up on the mudguard, the car is thrown out of commission. The car can be started by substituting a round disc. Tampering with it sets off a warning siren. (K.)

BODY OF MISSING MAN HANGING IN TREE

William J. Keith Had First Taken Poison Before Ending Life in Palmer

Springfield, Sept. 29.—The mystery in the disappearance of William J. Keith, sixty-nine years old, a retired merchant of this city, was solved today when his body was found hanging in a tree near the village reservoir in the town of Palmer.

Examination of the body disclosed the astonishing fact that before hanging himself he had taken poison.

Keith was prosperous and the only reason friends can assign for his self-destruction is despondency because of poor health.

Keith, whose home was at No. 24 Grove street, this city, disappeared last Tuesday. He had gone to Palmer to visit his brother, Dr. Silas T. Keith and after dining went for a walk, from which he never returned.

Foul play was at first suspected and a general search of the countryside was instituted. Firemen and police led in the hunt. They were joined by private citizens and Boy Scouts, and two days this week the schools of Palmer were closed so the children might join the searchers.

The body was found by Eli Thorne who has been one of the most active in the hunt for the missing man and organized today's searching party.

The tree [illegible] which the body was hanging is a long walk from Dr. Keith's home. Nobody has identified the rope [illegible] it is believed the suicide brought with him from his home having planned to end his life in Palmer so that his [illegible] might not suffer the shock of finding him.

The exact nature of the poison he took has not been determined but it is said to have been powerful enough to cause death unaided. Keith is survived by a sister besides his wife and brother.

SAFETY COUNCIL TOLD ACCIDENTS ARE FEWER

"Don't Get Hurt" Lessons Are Taken to Heart, Boston Convention Hears

The great Industrial State of Massachusetts, which has suffered a loss of $66,000,000 from industrial accidents in the past nine years, has taken the lessons of No-Accident Week to its heart, according to the Massachusetts Safety Council.

The accidents this week have been few in comparison to the average daily record of killings and maimings, it is said.

When the tenth annual congress of the National Safety Council reassembled at the State House today the following report on accident conditions for the week was made by the Massachusetts Safety Council:

"Of the five hospitals in Cambridge two report no accidents treated, and the others a marked reduction over the number of accidents usually treated for the corresponding period.

"Malden Hospital treated no accidents during the first three days.

"Salem had only three minor accidents, the most serious of which was caused by a fall from a piazza. This was a marked reduction over last year.

"Needham, which has a small accident record normally, has reported none so far.

"Greenfield had a clean record up to Wednesday night.

"Haverhill reports two fatal accidents and one minor accident as against 13 accidents for the corresponding week a year ago.

"Fitchburg up to Wednesday afternoon had reported no accident although it had three children injured by automobiles during the same period a year ago.

"Lowell shows a net reduction of eight in automobile accidents as compared with the previous week but an increase in minor industrial accidents."

TWO LANDLORDS ASKED TO JUSTIFY INCREASES

Summonses for a hearing tomorrow afternoon have been issued by the Commission on the Necessities of Life for Samuel and L. Rubenstein of No. [illegible] Humboldt avenue to appear and show cause for increasing rents on property owned by them on South street, Jamaica Plain and Columbus avenue, Roxbury.

The case was referred to the commission by Herbert Ellis, chairman of the Boston Housing Commission, who claims the Rubensteins refuse to give the city committee information [illegible] rent increases. Tenants allege that on the South street

PUTTING THE PUNCH IN THE DRIVE TOLD BY GOLF EXPERT

By JOCK HUTCHISON

In my last golf lesson I left the pupil with the club in midair, posed at what is known in golf parlance as the top of the swing. I hope the club is still there and that the beginner has not tried to start it on its downward journey, otherwise these words of explanation will go amiss.

I want it to be understood first of all that I am describing the perfect swing taken from all of the leading exponents of the art. The club as I said before is pointing towards the hole or the intended flight of the ball, not to the ground nor up in the air.

I consider the horizontal position the only true one, surely only an unorthodox player would recommend any other.

Over swingers lose all of their force before getting half way to the ball. Three-quarter swingers must make up for a lot, as they have a shorter space to gather their speed.

There are some pretty fair drivers who employ both freak styles, but they are few and far between. It is best to do it right if possible. I know a lot of three-quarter swingers who drive a good ball, but they are satisfied with a short distance in order to obtain direction.

Naturally, the shorter the swing the straighter one is apt to drive. Many would not trust themselves to take the club back over the shoulder for fear of losing all sense of direction. Only recently Chick Evans has shortened the swing on his drive somewhat to add accuracy.

Willie Hunter, who won the amateur championship in Great Britain, uses only a three-quarter swing, and thereby keeps very straight. He must sacrifice a lot of distance, a thing that I do not think pays in the end.

I mentioned some days ago that the left hand should grip the club firmly and that the right should be moderately loose, or words to that effect.

In tightening the grip with the right hand the club is started on its first move downward. There is no pause at the top of the swing that would be noticeable, just a studying of the club.

With an ordinary camera, it would be quite possible to get a snap shot without a smear if the player is caught just as he has finished his up swing.

There is no reason to pause any longer than the fraction of a second or time enough to start back without jerking the club.

A tightening of the finger grip with the right hand is sufficient to do it, followed almost immediately with the action of the wrists and then the arms. Don't pinch club and stiffen up.

It takes just approximately two seconds to complete the average golf swing. About half of this time is consumed in the upward swing and the other half in the downward swing the follow through and the finish of the club.

It is speed that is required in the downward swing, but it must be applied at exactly the right instant to get all there is out of a golf stroke. An instant too soon or the fraction of a second too late and the shot is ruined. Don't try to put on any power to make the slightest attempt to put any great speed into the shot until the club is about opposite the hip.

There, of course, is a gradual increase in the speed without any semblance of the jerky movement that might spoil the rhythm. When the club comes in contact with the ball it should be traveling at its greatest speed.

There should be no effort whatsoever to stop the club then when one thinks the work has been done, as that a small part of the job assigned to the club head has been completed.

There is the follow through, and the finish. The latter is not so important, but the follow through must be a part of every well made golf swing to insure success.

The club is traveling at a terrific pace when the impact is made, but in order not to hamper in any way the effect of the perfect shot the clubhead must be permitted to do its work before any attempt is made to get the body into the blow.

Therefore, it is necessary to wait for the clubhead. Most of us are too impatient sometimes to do this. We attempt to hurry the shot and consequently spoil it.

This is one of the evil effects of pressing to gain more distance. If it is not the body that turns too soon it is the hands going out ahead when they should be checked.

The left heel should return to the ground the moment that the ball is hit, as the player at the impact should be in the same position he was in when addressing the ball.

The weight shifts from the right to the left leg very gradually. To complete a golf swing with perfect rhythm there is no noticeable jerky movements.

There is, however, a terrific swish to the clubhead as it hits the ball and carries it away, but one must look very close to observe a Vardon or a Duncan exert any special effort on the impact.

This is because the swing has all been so wonderfully timed that the hitting of the ball is only a mere incident. A certain snap of the wrists helps. Most long drivers have powerful wrists and forearms.

With the hard hitter or long driver the ball will stay on the face of the club for a longer period than it will with the short driver, because there has been more power in the swing.

When following through one must send the clubhead on in the direction the ball should go. The finish of the swing will come naturally.

Not every star performer finishes with the club behind him, as is shown in all of the pretty pictures of the golfer who has just played his shot.

There is Abe Mitchell, for instance, who is one of the longest drivers known to the game. Abe checks his swing, and he brings his hands up to a position in front of his face with the club pointing upward.

He does not really attempt to check the club, it is only a natural thing with him. The follow through has been tremendous and the clubhead has gone out so far after the ball that this finish is a natural consequence.

Many mistake the follow through for the finish of the swing. They are entirely different. It is possible to finish with the club around your back which is a completion of the full St. Andrews swing and yet not have a very long follow through.

The flight of the ball should be interesting to golfers. I will explain this and also the different golf balls in my next article.

RETAIL LEAGUE HAS BANQUET TONIGHT

Store Baseball Championship Cup for R. H. White Co. at Filene's Restaurant

The Retail Stores Baseball League will close its season tonight with a banquet and theatre party, with players of the six store teams, officials, representatives of the firms and the press and Frank Tinney, star of "Tickle Me," as guests.

The stores to be represented are R. H. White Co., Wm. Filene's Sons Co., C. F. Hovey Co., A. Shuman & Co., Leopold Morse Co., Houghton Dutton Co.

The banquet will be served in the restaurant of the Filene Co-operative Association, and President Joseph Doyle of R. H. White Co. will act as toastmaster.

Following the banquet the entire group will occupy the box seats at the Shubert Theatre. Special arrangements have been made at the theatre, and the store banners with American flags will decorte the boxes.

At the banquet the R. H. White Co. will be awarded the championship cup and Frank Tinney will make the presentation speech. The Filene orchestra will play during the banquet, and C. E. Coyne, Filene's, and Joe Hennessey, White's, the committee in charge, are planning some surprises.

The affair will close after a most successful season on the diamond, and the amateur rule has been strictly adhered to.

The league completed a schedule of ten games, playing daylight ball, and R. H. White Co., with Murphy in the box, were invincible. The champions won all their games.

The success of the league and the support given the teams by the representative firms and employes assures the league of another big season in 1922.

BUCKNELL SCRUB TEAM AS STRONG AS VARSITY

Lewisburg, Pa., Sept. 29.—Bucknell's football prospects are considerably beclouded by the strength of the scrub team. In every scrimmage since the teams were picked they have shown almost as much strength as the varsity. Today's practice, which was the final before the W. & J. game, was no exception. Captain Bowser and his cohorts seemed to have a lot of difficulty in penetrating the scrub defence.

In a forty-minute session they were able to register only two hard-earned touchdowns. The varsity attack was turned aside time after time, and several times the second-stringers clearly held the upper hand.

How to Revitalize Wornout Exhausted Nerves

Your nerve power depends on plenty of good, rich, red blood of the kind that organic iron—Nuxated Iron—helps make. Nuxated Iron is like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples while metallic iron is iron just as it comes from the action of strong acids on iron filings. Nuxated Iron does not injure the teeth nor upset the stomach, it is an entirely different thing from ordinary metallic iron. It quickly helps make rich, red blood, revitalize wornout, exhausted nerves, and give you new strength and energy. Over 4,000,000 people annually are using it. Beware of substitutes. Always insist upon having genuine organic iron—Nuxated Iron. Look for the letters N. I. on every tablet. Sold by all druggists in tablets only—never in liquid form.—Adv.

FOOTBALL PRIMER

By CHARLES E. PARKER

CHAPTER III.

Before taking up the rules which govern football, it is essential that the new student of the game know something of the general scheme of action.

Interest in the recent war may have prepared many of their number — certainly those who received military training—to more readily appreciate the game, for football is miniature warfare.

In each play there is an attacking force and a defending force; the scrimmage line in the game is the battle line in warfare, the linemen in football occupy the same relative position as do troops on the firing line; the backfield men in football would constitute the reserve forces in battle—singularly enough the ideal size of a reserve unit in warfare is one-third of the entire force, which is almost exactly the case in football with four men in the backfield and seven on the line.

The objective of the attacking football team is the enemy's goal line. It seeks to carry the ball to that objective or sufficiently close to enable its artillery—the drop-kicker or the placement kicker—to score upon it.

To reach, or closely aproach, that objective a defending force of equal numbers must be overcome. (Sometimes, it is true, equal numbers do not mean equal strength, but for the purpose of instruction we will consider them so.)

Having, then, to overcome this enemy force of equal numbers certain manoeuvres are called into play. They embody deception, surprise, the quick application of a powerful force at a given point, and other elements of similar character.

In football, as in warfare, the flanks of the enemy line are the two more vulnerable points of attack. Consequently, in the majority of rushing plays, the backfield, or reserve force, is sent charging with the ball at or around the left or right extremity of the enemy line.

To make this attack more powerful and sure of success, the majority of football teams also draw a unit or two from the opposite side of their own line and swing them around into the charge.

To oppose these flank attacks the defending force, having but an equal number of men, must either weaken the centre of its line or draw upon its reserves, whereupon the attacking team, providing it is wisely directed, alters its scheme of play to suit the new conditions.

If the centre of the enemy line has been weakened, the rushing attack is directed at that point, while if the reserve force of the enemy has been weakened the attackers have recourse to the forward pass method of advancing the ball.

To all such attacks—flank, centre or forward pass—the elements of deception or surprise, or both are introduced. The attacking team endeavors insofar as possible to keep the ball from view; it often dispatches one or two players to some point other than that of the actual attack, for the purpose of drawing off some of the opposing players; it so arranges its formations, before the start of play, that the enemy is kept in doubt as to the actual method of attack; or by a quick shifting of a number of its players develops a mass

CAVANAUGH CUTS B. C. SQUAD TO FIFTY

Absence of Jim Conelley From the Team Is Cause of Comment

What virtually amounts to a cut in the Boston College squad was made yesterday when all but fifty of the ninety odd candidates, were dropped from the training table. Much promising material was let go, as Coach Cavanaugh could not give his attention to such a large squad. Only those who have shown by their work that they have sufficient ability and experience to make the first four squads were retained.

The absence of Jim Conelley from the squad yesterday caused quite a surprise. Conelley was a letter man two seasons ago, and his playing was regarded as better than that of the majority of line candidates. When the left guard position was left open by Jim Doyle's injury, Conelley looked like the right man to fill the breach. Conelley states that his class work will take all his free time, and as he will be graduated in June, he feels that he cannot afford to let up on his studies.

Art McManus, the former Boston College High star, will have a much better chance to make the regular guard position now that Conelley has withdrawn from the contest.

In yesterday's practice Francis Elberry played at left guard on the second team. Elberry is a former Dean Academy man with a football reputation, who weighs more than 200 pounds.

Jerry O'Brien, a former Malden High player, has attracted much attention by his work as right halfback on the second team. While he seems almost too light, he can tear holes in the line in fine style.

Dusty Carr, the flashy fullback, whose work in the scrimmages last week earned him much well merited praise, will be out of the practice for the rest of the week with a hurt knee.

There was no scrimmage practice yesterday. The afternoon was devoted to line drill and signal practice. Secret sessions will be held for the remainder of the week, but little scrimmage work will be in order.

BAKER FINDS INDIAN FOR MARATHON STAR

New York, Sept. 29.—Homer Baker, former international half-mile champion, who is government athletic director in the Canal Zone, declares in a letter received by a friend today that he has found a Marathon runner who may be developed for the next United States Olympic team.

The discovery is White Feather, full-blooded Indian from the same tribe as the great Tom Longboat. White Feather is with the United States army troops in the Canal Zone. He trains, Baker said, three times a week over the roads from Colon to Gatun.

Walter Cox Improving

Columbus, O., Sept. 29.—The condition of Walter Cox, race horse driver, who was taken seriously ill of acute indigestion yesterday, was reported improved at a local hospital today.

PURPLE TEAM EXPECTS TO BEAT HARVARD ON SATURDAY

By CHARLES E. PARKER

New York may have a World's Series in the offing, but Greater Boston has a Harvard-Holy Cross football game in the very immediate future and, from the conversation one hears about town, the latter contest will draw fully as large a crowd, if not larger, to the Stadium as will assemble at the Polo Grounds for the opening game of the expected Yankee-Giants title clash.

None who witnessed last year's meeting of the Crimson and the Purple has forgotten the nip-and-tuck gridiron engagement which ultimately found Harvard on top by the narrow margin of 3 to 0—incidentally the lowest score registered by the Harvard team in the course of the entire season.

* * *

On Saturday all but four of the Holy Cross players who contributed the thrills of that game, will be on hand for another crack at the Crimson. They make no secret of their belief that this year they can and will master the Harvard team. Not a few local sport followers appear to share the view, and few are there who do not concede the Purple a chance of victory.

* * *

Harvard, however, will rule the favorite and a reasonably strong favorite, notwithstanding.

* * *

Cleo O'Donnell, the very able Holy Cross coach, is a rooter for Harvard's method of "playing it safe"—that is, from a tactical standpoint.

* * *

"Play for a draw and take a win on the other fellow's miscues," was Cleo's way of putting it, and, all things being equal, there is an immense amount of sound logic in that remark, as applied to the modern game of football.

* * *

But, in the approaching Harvard-Holy Cross contest, all things are not going to be equal.

* * *

In the kicking department, for instance, Harvard has at least four men who can and should outkick the Holy Cross booters by a margin of several yards to a punt; Harvard has a very considerable weight advantage in all but one position in the lineup; Harvard boasts a much larger and abler supply of substitutes, Harvard, because of its large coaching and scouting staff has been in a much better position to prepare itself to meet Holy Cross plays.

* * *

And because of such inequalities, Cleo O'Donnell's team can't afford to play safe to the same extent Harvard can. Holy Cross must take chances to make up for these inequalities, and through taking chances the miscues, which are more or less certain to occur, will play directly into Harard's hands.

* * *

Holy Cross, however, can't be counted out on that score alone, for even when apparently playing things safe errors occur, and such errors on the part of Harvard will find an alert eleven taking full advantage.

* * *

As a team Holy Cross is probably faster than Harvard, and if appearances count is in superb physical condition. Its players have had the Harvard game in view ever since it was scheduled, and those, who were not keeping fit through athletic activities this Summer engaged in work that would serve the same purpose, one or two of their number serving on ice wagons during the Summer months.

Bill Case, the Purple's 243-pound left guard, furnishes the one instance in which a Holy Cross player boasts a weight advantage, although a new fullback prospect, Mahaney by name, the latter's 196-pounds, would top the weight of any of the Crimson backfield players.

* * *

O'Donnell probably will start Riopel, a sub last year, in the fullback position, with Seimondinger and Gagnon at the halves and Wallingford, another sub of last year, at quarterback. All four are fast, shifty, hard-working backfield men, who go well in combination when on the offense and play an alert hard-tackling defensive game. Seimondinger, the heaviest of the quartet, weighs but 165, and the others are from five to fifteen pounds lighter.

Individually, Gliden, the Purple's captain and centre, may show to advantage over the Crimson pivot who is used.

* * *

The Purple's tackles, Niland and McGrath, were substitutes last year and are much lighter than the Harvard guards whom they will oppose when on the attack, and are no heavier than the Harvard ends who will charge them when Harvard has the ball.

* * *

Young, a veteran first string end is extremely light, but a fighter from the word "Go," while Golembeskie who occupies the opposite wing, is reasonably heavy, although not so fast. He was a sub-wingman last year.

* * *

The mountainous Bill Case and 168 pound Bill Healy, are the Holy Cross guards, both regulars of last year.

* * *

Holy Cross is at a disadvantage in not having had the benefit of a preliminary game before encountering Harvard, but although Holy Cross may not—probably will not—win Saturday's contest, its team should set a merry pace for the Crimson and undoubtedly will offer a brand of football that will be well worth the journey to the Stadium.

KANSAS PUNCHES WAY TO THE FRONT

By JACK CONWAY.

When Boston boxing fans see Rocky Kansas, the Buffalo Hercules, in the Arena against Frankie Britt of New Bedford next Monday night, they will note quite a contrast in the fighting methods and style of the New York Stater as compared to his last appearance in this city.

Rocky has had quite a sensational rise in the pugilistic ranks since visiting Boston, scoring a one-round knockout over Jimmy Duffy, the Lockport, N. Y., welterweight; a one-round knockout over Richie Mitchell, the pride of Milwaukee; a five-round knockout over Bobby Ward of St. Paul; an eight-round knockout over Miner Mitchell of Syracuse; a decisive referee's verdict over Willie Jackson of New York in Madison Square Garden, and a referee's decision over Frankie Schoell, his fellow townsman, last June in a twelve-round bout for the Irish Relief Fund.

* * *

Kansas, usually a quiet and retiring youngster, following these sensational victories had the courage to tackle Benny Leonard, lightweight champion of the world, in a 15-round bout staged at Harrison, N. J., last June, permitting the king of lightweights, to smile at the welterweight mark. For nine rounds Kansas chased Leonard all over the ring, compelling the wizard of boxers to call upon his remarkable resourcefulness to escape a vicious left hook and dangerous haymaker.

From the ninth to the twelfth round Leonard outboxed Kansas and scored the newspaper decision, but he never he had been in a battle, for this once Benny's customarily ever-ice-combed and parted hair was very much disturbed and rattled, while his thin lips gave forth the crimson from a Kansas punch.

* * *

The Buffalo championship contender is keen to score over Frankie Britt at the Arena, for it was in this town that Britt got a decision over Kansas. Rocky always claimed Boston worked the "native son" racket, for he whipped Britt several months later in a 15-round decision in Buffalo. Kansas, who is virtually matched to box Jackson, Tendler and Dundee in Madison Square Garden bouts, will put forth his best fighting effort to defeat Britt at the Arena next Monday night.

Patrons of the Carlyle A. C. are elated at the new price established by the Grand Opera House organization, and the directors are being commended in given credit for setting a price that will give 600 of its regulars a chance to see high class contests at a popular price.

The directors of the club decided that business conditions did not warrant them adhering to the high prices of last season, so there will be a half dollar tariff for the gallery seats tomorrow night.

* * *

Many of the regular patrons of the sport have been bemoaning their hard luck in recent weeks because for one reason or another they could not meet the demands for season tickets. Now, however, they are subject to a stand taken in their behalf by the Carlyle A. C. officials.

* * *

It will be a real treat for them to see Paul Doyle, the New England welterweight champion, opposed to Thamus O'Brien of Yonkers, N. Y., the Gustine, Billy and Steve, in bout with Mike Kirat of St. Paul and Eddie Ford of East Boston, respectively, and Young Gould, the Brockton sensation, and Jimmy White, the New Yorker, who brought a vast crowd to its feet in Mechanics Hall one evening last Spring when he stopped Billy Duffy of Everett and created the greatest surprise of the season by doing so.

* * *

Club after club has endeavored to obtain the services of White, but none would meet his price. The directors of the Carlyle A. C. decided to do so, however, and once again the fans who like to see a real hard hitter will have a chance to see whether White is a regular bumper with his right or just a flash in the pan performer with that hand. Reservations may be secured at Room No. 39 Court street; telephone Fort Hill 2988.

* * *

With the idea in view of developing local boxers, boys of the Matty Baldwin, Kid Goodman, Chester Goodwin, Jimmy Briggs, Jimmy Walsh or the Al Delmont type, the St. Joseph's A. A. will conduct during the Winter months a series of amateur shows at Commercial Hall in Bowdoin square. Already one such show has been held and on Friday night there is to be another.

President William H. Cuddy, of the N. E. A. A. A. U., who is the guiding genius of the West End organization, declares that the indications are that Friday night's show will be even better than its predecessor. And shrewd judges declared the last St. Joseph's amateur show was one of the best ever staged in Massachusetts.

* * *

Already entries have been received from the leaders in the amateur classes of the past year or so. The bouts carded for Friday night are in the 108-115-125 and 145-pound classes. During the Winter months boys of heavier weights who do not yet care to enter the professional field, will be given their chance to show followers of the "simon pure" sport.

* * *

Amateur fans will recall some of the interesting bouts which resulted in the 108-pound class series when President Cuddy offered the fans Indications are that the series this Winter will be fully as interesting with the further outlook for an entertaining series of bouts in the lightweight class.

Reservations for this show can be had at the office of the A. A. U. boxing committee, No. 23 School street.

Academys Open Season

The Academy A. A. of Roxbury will open the season with the Curtens of South Boston on Sunday at the Columbus Park grounds. The Academy A. A. claims to have the snappiest 125-pound team in New England. The eleven is coached by Russell L. Haley of Mercerbury Academy, and is composed of well-known high school and college stars, such as County of B. C., Daley of Commerce, Gildea of Holy Cross, Woodworth of Mechanic Arts and Cunningham of English High.

RED SOX AT HOME TODAY WITH SENATORS

Duffy Team Has Laundryman's Chance of Landing First Division Honors

The Red Sox, with the proverbial laundryman's chance of homing into the first division, opened their final home series at Fenway Park today. They entertain the Senators for three days, and by winning three pastimes, just like that, can flop into fourth place.

After the Washington engagement, the club goes to New York for a Sunday game with the Yankees, which means another armful of dough, as the Gotham populace will be out to applaud the new champions, or if the worst comes to the worst, watch a game that could, but probably will not, decide a pennant.

* * *

The Boston season for the Sox has been the leanest in the history of the club, Babe Ruth being about the only bird able to overheat the turnstiles.

But the team played to big crowds in the villages where the flag fight was waging, and undoubtedly came through with a godly collection of coin.

* * *

Manager Duffy did very well with the material he had on hand, as there was no apparent effort made at any time to strengthen the outfit, which everybody in Boston knew didn't shape up as even an outside contender in a year when there wasn't a really strong team in the running.

RICKARD OFFERS WILLARD BOUT WITH DEMPSEY

New York, Sept. 29.—Tex Rickard has sent a contract to Jess Willard former world's heavyweight boxing champion, for a return contest with Jack Dempsey. Rickard declined to make known the financial arrangements, but said that it is proposed to hold the bout between June 15 and July 5, 1922. The contract provides that the bout be held in the United States, Canada or Mexico.

Frank Jedlinski is also in hopeful mood over the chance to advance, even though he is to meet such a veteran as Alex Jarvis, a master of the game from every angle and with a wise old head on his broad shoulders.

John Spiros, carrying the hopes of the Greek contingent, cannot see where Tommy Record has a chance to beat him, but the Somerville lad banks on decisively pinning the former

BOSTON COLLEGE TENNIS TOURNEY STARTS TODAY

Tennis has now taken its place in the list of Boston College athletic activities. Under the auspices of "The Heights," the Boston College weekly, a tennis tournament will be held, beginning today. More than fifty entrants have been recorded so far.

The tournament is in charge of a committee consisting of Walter Graham '22 of Newtonville, editor of the Heights, as chairman; Nelson O'Brien '22, of Cambridge, and Daniel J. McSweeney '22, of Dorchester.

Another tournament is planned for the Spring.

MAT SEASON GETS UNDER WAY TONIGHT

Waino Ketonen, mat star par excellence, declares that he will step on the mat at the Grand Opera House this evening and stop Otto (Hackenschmidt) so effectively that the latter will forget his many European successes during the past summer and start out once more to learn up-to-the minute wrestling.

MEDBURY

Says Landlords Don't Believe in Wasting Time---They Come Around to Your Door With a Rent Receipt in One Hand and a Dispossess Notice in the Other

In a couple of days now a lot of people's leases will be up. Apartments are scarcer than "Thank Yous" from taxicab drivers.

Hundreds of tenants have no place to go, and they've got until the first to get there.

They got the moving men to put their furniture in the van and then have him drive around until they can get him an address to stop at.

You phone the landlord that you're giving up your flat, and before you hang up the receiver, the new tenants are at the door wanting to know if you'll let them bring their furniture in.

It takes a smart man to have furniture, but it takes a smarter man to find a place to put it.

Landlords are too independent. Most of them are colder than ice cream from a glass eye.

Many a man who isn't a curb broker has been put on the street by a landlord.

The newspapers says that rents are coming down, but the landlords can't afford it.

A lot of people who have been living in a modern apartment would like to go out and sleep on a park bench, but they wouldn't know what to do with all the extra room.

The law a right behind the tenant but the trouble is, it's too far behind him.

Renting an apartment is a game of give and take. You give them the money in advance and take what you get.

Landlords have their troubles, too. Everything is profit and loss. You spread the loss and they take the profit.

Landlords may be unpopular when they go around for the rent, but the tenants usually ask them to call again.

Landlords believe in efficiency. They come around to your door with a rent receipt in one hand and a dispossess notice in the other.

If your rent's due on the first they never press you. They generally give you until the day before to pay it.

If a landlord has a warm heart then a Polar bear has a temperature of 400.

Arthur Stringer's Studio Romance THE WINE OF LIFE Illustrated by James Montgomery Flagg

A Stirring Narrative of the Influence of Love on the Lives of a Girl and a Man

The Story of an Ambitious Young Sculptor Who Goes to New York to Win His Way

Will Giving Up Her Career Bring Torrie Happiness?

OWEN STORROW, a young Sculptor arriving in New York to make his fortune, marries a charming girl, Torrie Throssel, being trained for the stage by Herman Krassler, a producer. She impresses on Storrow the need of keeping their marriage secret for professional reasons.

Storrow, nettled by the attitude of Chester Hardy, a literary friend, tells him Torrie is his wife and Torrie upbraids him. They quarrel and Storrow insists she give up the studio next to his, lent to her by an absentee artist named Vibbard. Torrie announce her determination to live her own life, but later repents and tells Storrow contritely that she has given up the studio and her stage life too, and that he is the only one who counts.

Will Torrie be happy in keeping house for Storrow and doing nothing else—the problem has not come to her yet, but it is bound to assert itself. Meanwhile Storrow feels as though he had won a victory.

INSTEAD of kissing her, however, Storrow stood staring at her in wonder, alarmed at that strongly rising note of hysteria in her throaty voice. For the first time in his life, indeed, he found himself without any inclination to kiss her. What was more, he quite failed to see what kisses had to do with the situation.

"Kiss me—quick!" she commanded.

For the first time as he turned away from her, he saw the square-faced bottle of dry gin on the table with the sugar and seltzer and squeezed lemons beside it. She had been drinking, he saw, drinking a good deal more than could be good for her. Not that she was drunk, or ever thick-tongued and muddled. He had never seen her in that condition, and he imagined that he never should. But instinct and early training combined to make a woman's use of intoxicants still repulsive to him.

The men and women in Torrie's world, he remembered, took a view quite opposite to his, which they would have laughed at as provincial, as smug and mid-Victorian. And that world, in a way, was already his own world. He had entered it and was being a part of it; and in Rome, he concluded, it was acknowledged best to do what the Romans did.

A Masculine Fear

There were still certain aspects of that world which he could not comprehend. Its casual liberties, its freedom and intercourse, its topsy-turvydom of standards were still a bewilderment to him. Repeatedly he was being confronted by that freemasonry of Bohemia which kept warning him there would have to be ever-renewed shifts in the outposts of behavior, inexplicable contractions at one point and equally inexplicable expansions at another.

He dreaded, as all men of sensibilities dread, the accusation of narrowness. Iniquity he knew, was not peculiar to the city. He had seen enough of country life to remember that impurity could walk in lilacked lanes as corruptingly as it sidled along lamp-lit pavements. But in the crowded centres it brushed more disconcertingly close to one. And still again he made it a point to remember that he was a newcomer to that great city so contradictory in aspect and so indecipherable in purpose.

It was not only too big to be changed. It was also too complex in its blind interweaving of strata for him to choose and cleave to any one particular plane. It was he himself and not the city, that must change. Yet inevitable as these changes were, he had no intention of leaving life little more than a mush of concessions. He would always insist on elbow room for his soul.

Still Another

And it was becoming more and more difficult, he felt as he crossed to Torrie's side and kissed her for the sake of peace, and purely for the sake of peace, to distinguish between advance and retrogression, between enslavement and emancipation. For just a moment, before he drank down the gin-rickey which she had mixed for him, he entertained a suspicion that his wife's insistence on physical contact was for inflammatory and obliterative ends, to burn up in a flame of passion all traces of more trivial emotion, as the burglar has been known to burn the mansion after ransacking its treasure chests.

But by the time he had finished his second gin rickey he no longer gave harborage to such battered suspicions. It was a new world, he told himself, and he was there to make the most of it, to make the most of it with Torrie at his side. And as though to seal that determination, he asked for still another gin rickey.

Storrow, in making the most of his new world with Torrie at his side, found a number of things to tax both his patience and his resolution. His studio, in the first place, betrayed symptoms of being embarrassingly overcrowded, once the Vibbard apartment had been cleared of his wife's belongings and the communicating door had been duly locked and sealed.

Torrie, too, had little of Storrow's sense of orderliness, and sustained application to that work with which he knew life could alone be justified became more and more difficult. Yet he was unable to accuse Torrie of not doing her part. She had imposed on her friends, he grew to understand, a tacit conspiracy of absenteeism, and few indeed were the callers, outside of the irrepressible Pannie Atwill and the persistently loyal Hardy, who came to interrupt them.

It struck Storrow as odd, as the weeks slipped by, that the constraint existing between Torrie and Hardy, instead of diminishing, grew both more active and more observable. He spoke of this one night, after coming home in time to witness Torrie bidding his friend from the Avenue a none too cordial farewell.

"Why don't you learn to like Hardy a little better?" he asked as Torrie proceeded to shake up the cocktails with which they invariably preceded dinner.

Instead of answering that question Torrie turned and asked him another.

"What does the note of Ecclesiastes mean?" she half-indifferently inquired.

"The note of Ecclesiastes?" he repeated. "Who used that phrase?"

"Chester Hardy did. He seemed to insinuate that that's the note we're going to end up on. He may know what that means, but I don't."

Storrow stopped short.

"What was Hardy talking about?" he demanded.

Torrie, before answering that question, drank down her cocktail.

"As far as I can make out he doesn't seem to think we're suited to each other. He says we look at life from altogether different sides. And he announced to me, Honey Bun, that now you were in my hands, I'd have to treat you as though you were made of Dresden china."

"And what particular business is all that of Hardy's?" asked Storrow out of the silence that had fallen over him.

"That's what I've been wondering," observed Torrie as she handed Storrow his cocktail. He stared down at the thin-shanked glass abstractedly. That, he remembered, was one of Torrie's contributions to their menage. After he had emptied it, still without speaking, he realized that he had been tired in both body and mind.

"By the way, how did you happen to know Hardy?"

Torrie, before answering that question, crossed to the kitchenette and just as slowly returned to the table.

"Doesn't everybody know him? I happened to meet him, the same as other people do."

"When?"

"Two or three years ago," she patiently replied.

"And he's been nothing but a casual friend?"

Torrie, stooping over the table, looked up sharply.

"He's never even been that. What'd interest me in that dried up fish who's always prowling around inspecting people as though they were museum specimens? And I know what's the matter with him at this very moment. He's souring with envy, just plain everyday envy. He missed his chance of getting any happiness out of life, and he's sore, without knowing it, at seeing us trying to be happy."

"That dried up fish," Storrow carefully reminded her, "has been a good friend of mine."

"But you can't get away from the fact, Honey, that it was me you married. And I intend to come first, no matter what the outsiders may say. And we're going to be happy, aren't we, Owen, no matter what Hardy may imagine?"

"That, I think, depends more on ourselves than on Hardy."

She came and sat on the arm of his chair, apprehensive of returning solemnities.

"If we love each other, my own, it's nobody's business, and nothing matters. But you must love me. You must. I've got to have it. Do you? Do you?"

Regarded Storrow

"Of course," he said, capitulating before the barrage of her caresses, at the same moment that he stood conscious of the celerity with which that artillery could always be wheeled into place.

"Then kiss me! No, not that way. My way!" Then muffled, through her contented cries of protest, she murmured: "You . . . beloved . . . big . . . brute!"

It was Pannie Atwill who invaded the studio the next night as Storrow sat at a paper-littered work-table absorbed in his story, the loquacious Pannie more loose-jointed than ever. There was something conspicuously uncouth, Storrow saw, even in her newer manner of speech.

"Hello, Torrie; how's tricks? I just gotta get a peek at your map to make sure they haven't planted you over to Greenwood! Hello there, Capt'n Kidd. But gimme a gasper quick or I'll pass away."

The next moment her exuberant young lungs were filled with smoke. Then she regarded Storrow out of one corner of her eye. "Say Torrie, why is that big Woof-Woof of yours so afraid o'me. No, Shakespeare, don't stop the masterpiece. Keep right on dreamin' for rent day's on the road and the high cost o'lovin' ain't lowerin' any so far as I can see. But look here, Torrie Throssel, don't you get fat whatever happens. There ain't no such animal as a perfect thirty-eight, not in our world. And Dearie, you sure ought to doll up a little, even if that soul-mate o' yours isn't askin' for a pink mesh over the peach-basket."

"Can that!" was Torrie's preoccupied command, keyed down to the plane of Pannie's comprehension. But Pannie was not to be silenced.

"If I owned that book-worm over there I'd make him sit up nights and dig out an A'nerican C'mill for me to star in and put that Klennert dame out o' business. What's doin'? Yes, of course; I knew you'd take it serious once you got it. Well, as Donnie Eastman used to say, it's a great life if you keep the lining in!

"And speakin' o' that feller reminds me, Donnie took the bunch out to Krebbiers' last night, and believe me it was some party! The bubble-water flowed knee-deep. And Dummy Varge Dyckman got doin' her Castle-stunt on the table and we was all put out at 3 a. m.

"And Donnie was askin' me what mausoleum you was nailed up in and if you were too dead to sit in a Rolls-Royce some afternoon when the walkin' was heavy. But of course that Big Push over there'd blow up if he thought you was gettin' a lungful of open air. That's men for you!"

"Oh, no, it isn't," quickly corrected Torrie through the intervening blue haze of smoke. "It was the state of matrimony I entered not a State prison."

HEARTLESS FRIENDS

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"PLEASE advise me about my most intimate friend," writes Grace T. "We went through school together and worked side by side in an office for four years. We were chums throughout. When I married she was my bridesmaid. She is at home at home in my house as she is in her own. And she causes me so much unhappiness I'd never put up with it if I didn't love her so I can forgive her anything.

"Mollie's broken up my friendship with my husband's sisters. She wastes hours for me by making appointments and never showing up. She's humiliated me by twisting my husband around her little finger right before my eyes. Not that Jerry likes her, but she just puts him in a position where he can't do anything but snub her or pretend to play up to her flirtations.

"She's doing this to make his best friend jealous. And as we want Ralph to care for her Jerry and I do our best to play the game. But Ralph's mother says she won't come to the house if this girl is there."

The girl of Mollie's type doesn't dream that anyone as humble as Grace can be clever enough to see through her [illegible] And as long as she [illegible] away with murder [illegible] she [illegible]

If Grace would [illegible] Mollie over her knee and deliver a [illegible] spanking she'd find that it worked famously.

Mollie is probably more anxious to retain Grace's friendship than Grace ever thought of being to keep hers. Why, one girl is married and has a home and a husband with whom she's evidently on the best of terms, and the other is intriguing madly to win a man whose indifference probably hurts a lot.

All Grace needs is to assert herself. No one can tyrannize over anyone who refuses to be taken advantage of. A little self-respect and a lot of assertiveness is what is needed to fit this case.

Suggestive Relics

Mrs. Parsons had gone away from home on holiday, leaving her husband lamenting. On arriving at her destination she missed her gold brooch, and sent a postcard to her servant asking the girl to let her know if she found anything on the dining-room floor when sweeping it. The servant duly replied, "Dear Madam—You ask me to let you know if I found anything when sweeping the dining-room floor this morning. I beg to report that I found thirty matches, three corks and a pack of cards."

Lack of Politeness

"Aren't you going to invite Mrs. Jorgensen to your dinner party?" asked Mrs. Bunderby's niece. "I should say not," answered the old lady. "I entertained her once and she never recuperated."

FOR JUNIOR GIRLS

—By Rita Stuyvesant—

THE girl of twelve to sixteen often finds difficulty selecting suitable frocks. But the better shops are now catering to the needs of the growing girl in frocks both for school and dressy occasions.

Worsted jersey makes a smart frock for school wear, and it is finished with collar and cuffs of ramie linen. This frock is made in one piece for convenience and may be quickly slipped into when the school gong sounds. The blouse is severely plain and rather scant, and the only trimming is the collar and cuffs, which are removable for laundering.

This blouse is attached at a low waistline to a full skirt and is provided with slit pockets. A string girdle of the material is looped around and tied in the back. This juvenile frock comes in navy blue, brown, Copenhagen or henna, and the trimmings are of white ramie linen.

Something more dressy is offered in a smart frock of velveteen, with trimmings of natural pongee. This frock is delightfully simple and is fashioned with collar and cuffs of the pongee edged with pleated ruffle. A bit of wool embroidery on the blouse lends a novel touch, and when one adds a soft sash of self color satin the result is indeed interesting. This frock is made in brown, navy and black.

There is a brand new Eton suit of navy blue serge or tricotine with a detachable blouse of natural silk pongee. The skirt is finely pleated with inch deep pleats, and is finished with a broad Roman silk girdle fringed at the ends. With this one wears a clever blouse of the pongee with a round collar worn on the outside of the short jacket.

Bachelor Girl's Reflections

BY HELEN ROWLAND

Copyright, 1921 by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

MANY a deluded woman has thought herself a perfect lady, until she got psycho-analyzed and came face to face with her subliminal self.

Sometimes a husband has so much confidence in his wife's perfect immunity from sentiment and flirtation that it is almost insulting.

The average girl never knows how much gratitude she owes to some frivolous widow who steam-rolled out her fiance's rugged love-making, and thereby made it so smooth, subtle and convincing.

Remorse to a woman is a bleaching of the soul; to a man it is merely the act of dipping his conscience in a bucket of whitewash, so that it won't get on his finer feelings.

The saddest sight on earth is that of a full-grown, square-jawed man sipping a nut sundae to cool his thirst on the way home from the office.

A Bachelor's Dream:

Take me out to far Hawaii, with its ukelele ballads,
Where the moonlight makes you woozy, and the ladies dress in salads,
Where a man may rest contented with the little that he has,
And there are no blue-reformers, and no flappers, and no jazz!

Love is misery—sweetened with imagination, salted with tears, spiced with doubt, flavored with novelty and swallowed with your eyes shut.

Woman is getting fair play in business and in politics; she may get fair play in heaven or Gehenna; but in love, the cards will always be stacked against her.

A woman who has her hair bobbed should first make sure that heaven bobbed her nose and temperament to match it.

Many a Summer flirtation which begins in a littel con, ends in a little contract—much to the man's surprise.

MORALE IN ILLNESS

—By Brice Belden, M. D.—

THERE is no remedy more important than hope. It has even been called the best remedy. Anything that increases a sick person's optimism is a curative asset, and anything that discourages is a liability.

A tactless physician could easily break down the morale of most of his patients if he tried to frighten them into compliance with his treatment.

People who have had hardly a sick day in their lives cannot be suddenly told that they have Bright's disease of the kidneys or something that sounds equally ominous.

It is different with the chronically ailing, or with those who have had a great many illnesses. The latter type of patient gets to be a sort of philosopher about these matters.

Everyone has noted how the delicate invalid will oftentimes live on while the robust may easily collapse and display but little resistance. We have already given a strong hint as to what is the trouble in these cases.

It is said that the breakdown is due to overwork or something equally irrelevant, when the truth is that something has happened which has broken down the man's morale and started a demoralizing panic.

When this sort of thing happens to a busy man who has always enjoyed good health the best remedy, hope, cannot be invoked.

HER OWN WAY

STORY OF A YOUNG GIRL'S STRUGGLES

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

HE narrowed his eyes. "Helen," he asked abruptly, "why did you bring those flowers down here and stick them in that waste-basket before they were faded? Was it because I admired them up there in your room?"

He was gazing directly at her. She felt very foolish. Yet she could not evade his scrutiny, and could not lie to him.

"No—not that—only I was angry because I had made a mistake and had been grateful to—another person—for them. And, after all, that friend did not send them."

"How do you know?"

"From what you said."

"From what I said?"

"Yes. You suggested that they were from you, and said you were glad I liked them."

"My dear girl!" her companion exclaimed, "I did nothing of the kind! I only said that I had hoped you would like them. Let me explain.

"A messenger boy was bringing a florist's box up the front steps the afternoon I arrived here. I saw your name on the wrapper. And I hoped that my little cousin for whom it was intended would be pleased. You must not intimate to your friend that I sent them. It would hurt him and make trouble."

"Oh!" Helen gasped, joy returning to her heart. "How silly of me to think that you meant the flowers were from you!"

"But," Sloane insisted, "you will not tell your friend of the mistaken idea I seem to have given you—will you?"

He stopped and swallowed hard. Helen laid her hand on his.

"I am sorry," she said again. "[I] wish I could help you!"

"Bless you!" he murmured. "[I] know you would if you could. That knowledge is in itself a comfort."

Best Recipe Contest

Two recipes will be printed each day in this contest, the writers receiving one dollar each, excepting on Monday, when the prize of $25 worth of groceries and provisions will be awarded. Watch the advertising pages of the Boston American for rules of the contest. The recipe winning first prize is selected each week by Miss Alice Bradley, principal of Miss Farmer's School of Cookery.

Boston Delight

One-half pound spaghetti, ½ pound hamburg steak, 1 cup canned corn, 1 cup tomatoes (canned or soup), ½ cup olive oil, 1 small onion, 1 green pepper, 1½ teaspoons salt, cayanne, Worcestershire sauce, ½ cup grated cheese. Cook spaghetti in boiling water (salted), chop onion and pepper fine and fry in oil until onions are golden brown. Add tomato, salt, dash of cayenne and about ½ tablespoon Worcestershire sauce. When thoroughly heated, stir in cheese until melted; then add spaghetti, corn and hamburg, which should be thinned out with a little cold water to prevent cooking in lumps. Stir, turn into baking dish and bake 20 minutes.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

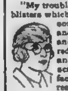

The following is an excellent recipe for a tasty salad dressing. The yolks of two hard-boiled eggs; three tablespoonsful of salad oil, four tablespoonsful of cream, or failing this, milk; one tablespoonful of mustard; a little salt, and the same of castor sugar, and two teaspoonsful of vinegar. Work the yolks very smoothly; add the cream and mustard and mix smoothly; drop in the oil slowly, stirring all the time, and, lastly, the vinegar, salt and sugar. If put in a tightly corked bottle this will keep some time.

Why Stay Fat? You Can Reduce

The answer of most fat people is that it is too hard, too troublesome and too dangerous to force the weight down. However, in Marmola Prescription Tablets, all these difficulties are overcome. They are absolutely harmless, entail no dieting or exercise, and have the added advantage of cheapness. A large case is sold by druggists at one dollar. Or if preferable, they can be obtained by sending price direct to the Marmola Co., 4612 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich. Now that you know this you have no excuse for being too fat, but can reduce two, three or four pounds a week without fear of bad after-effects.

HAD NERVOUS BREAKDOWN

Mrs. Ireland Permits us to Publish this Letter for the Benefit of Others Who Are in Her Condition

Warsaw, Missouri.—"For five years I was weakly, nervous and in a run-down condition. Then I had a nervous breakdown and doctors said I would never be well again. After I took seven bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was healthier, stronger and felt better than I ever did in my life before. I can't praise the Compound enough and will recommend it to all women. You may publish this letter if you think it will help others." — Mrs. FLOYD IRELAND, R. R. 1, Warsaw, Mo.

Nervous women are both ailing and wretched, and with a nervous breakdown all joy goes out of a woman's life. It is said that the ills peculiar to women act on the nerves like a firebrand.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is successful in overcoming such conditions, and a large number of American women who were once great sufferers from nerve troubles owe their present health and comfort to it and it contains no narcotics or harmful drugs.

FINANCE AND BUSINESS

By B. C. FORBES

What are you doing personally to help to provide work and to hasten business recovery?

"Oh, what could I do?" you may ask. "I'm not an employer. I'm not in a position to do anything."

Well, now, let's see.

* * *

Take my own case.

While prices and wages were abnormally high, I refrained from having any avoidable work done in or around my home, located in the country. It has badly needed decorating, but I have kept postponing and postponing it, knowing that I could have it done more reasonably and that the time would come when such a job would be welcomed by tradesmen who had been carrying very high heads for a long time. I have just arranged to give out this work, starting next month. This will give several weeks' work to a number of men, and will start something like a thousand dollars paying wages, paying for materials and paying business profits.

* * *

Feeling that automobile prices were bound to drop, I kept on tinkering an old car that had outlived its usefulness. Now that automobile prices have been drastically reduced, I have bought a new car. And I feel that I have received excellent value for my money.

This means more money put to work to give employment, to stimulate that buying of materials and to help both the situation and the sentiment.

* * *

Lately, too, we have felt more disposed to buy certain household necessaries, the buying of which we kept delaying and delaying because of high prices. We also feel more like buying clothes and shoes at the lower prices now obtainable.

* * *

In my own business operations I have begun to act more aggressively now that costs have come down and the outlook has brightened. We are prepared to exercise more courage than formerly. In this way we are helping, in a very small way, to absorb more workers and to start up more business.

* * *

In all these activities the two thoughts in my mind have been:

First—One can now obtain his money's worth in making sensible expenditures, and prospects justify more confidence that better times are within reach if we will but reach out intelligently to grasp them.

Second—That wise, rational spending of money is laudable and patriotic at a time like this when more work and more business are needed to lift us out of the doldrums and enable us to restore at least activity.

* * *

Now, there are, of course, a great number of people so situated in this country today that their main concern is to keep body and soul together. But there are a very much larger number who could do either a little or a lot to co-operate in winning back better times. Several million householders could doubtless spend advantageously a few or many dollars in adding to the comfort and attractiveness of their homes. There are other millions who could be exercising genuine thrift, not by practising niggardliness, but by thinking out and incurring expenditures calculated to increase both their happiness and their efficiency.

* * *

John Wanamaker tells how he has been spending large sums in improving one of his New York stores. He had faith that it would pay to make these expenditures during the recent dull period so as to be in a position to cope better with the business expansion which he foresees.

* * *

There are doubtless thousands of merchants, big and little, in the United States so circumstanced financially that they could carry out improvements on their stores which would prove profitable.

Why do not many of them get busy? By so doing they will not only better equip themselves to cope with coming business expansion, but they will, through these very expenditures, help in a very practical and direct way to hasten the coming of general business expansion.

Let us consider another phase of the business situation. Many raw materials are today so cheap that manufacturers and other large consumers ought to consider the advisability of laying in substantial stocks and placing orders for future delivery.

I believe there is less risk in such buying than in not buying.

* * *

Let each and every one of us cease brooding over the sombre past and turn our faces, our thoughts and our activities towards the more cheerful future, which we can bring about if we all accept a share of the responsibility for bringing it about. Things in this world don't "just happen." We have to cause them to happen.

* * *

Let's.

Awaiting Railroad Buying

The steel industry is now waiting for equipment buying by railroads and no great increase in plant activity is looked for until carriers come into the market. Sheet mills are doing the best at present, being operated at 70 per cent. of capacity. After them come tin plate mills at 65 per cent. and wire mills at from 50 to 55 per cent.

BURNS BROS. UP NEARLY SIX POINTS

Steels, Oils and Rails Made Morning Gains in Steady Market

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor.

Gains were general in New York at noon, the market having maintained a strong tone during the morning. It showed little alteration in the second hour. Trading was of moderate volume, transactions totaling about 208,000 shares. At noontime coppers showed improvement. They sold higher and were quite active, being led by Anaconda. It went up a point. Burns Bros. showed nearly six points gain late in the forenoon. General Electric advanced 1⅝. Call loans renewed at 5 per cent.

German marks were a little higher and foreign exchange in general had a firm tone. Opening quotations were: Demand sterling $3.71¼, up ⅛; French franc .0738½, up .000½; lire .0404, off .0003; marks .0081⅛, up .0002½.

STRONG AT START.

The market had a good tone at the opening and there was a general advance in which steels, oils and rails were prominent. The steels were benefited by reports that plant activity in this industry is expanding, while rails were higher despite the statement that their union employes to have voted to strike against the enforcement of a wage reduction. There was a relaxation of the selling pressure which bears have been applying to petroleum shares. Initial advances were mainly fractional, but issues to rise a point or more during the first hour included Baldwin, Crucible, Bethlehem B, General Asphalt, International Paper, Phillips Petroleum, Pan American, Studebaker, United Fruit, Delaware, Lackawanna and Western, Chicago and Northwestern, New York Central and Reading. Gains of more than two points were made by Mexican Petroleum, Houston and Burns Brothers. The issue last named established a new 1921 high. Its stockholders will meet on October 31 to act on the merger with the Farrell coal concern. Stocks went up because of short covering.

IN OVERSOLD CONDITION.

It seemed to be general belief that the market was in an oversold condition and a rally warranted by technical considerations. The public showed no more interest, however, than has been discernible for months. Trading continues to be professional in character and most operators have resumed their position on the bear side. But their onslaught on a few issues, like Baldwin and Mexican Petroleum, met with more resistance than they expected. Borrowing demand for stocks was limited after the close on Wednesday. United Fruit loaned at a premium of 3-64 of 1 per cent., while American Sugar commanded 1-64. While the rate of industrials ruled at 5 per cent., Mexican Petroleum loaned at 4 per cent. Wall Street did not manifest much interest in the railway consolidation proposition. "Nothing along that line is likely to be accomplished for a long time. But the suggeston ought to give weak rails a better market standing." It is persistently claimed that there is steady accumulating of both big and little carriers by some important interests.

Cotton Market Opening

New York, Sept. 29.—Initial losses of 7 to 24 points were attributed at the opening of the cotton market today to further hedge-selling and realizing, which offset firmer cables from Liverpool. For a time after the start the list was irregular, but the heavy buying by Wall Street, based on strength in securities, gradually absorbed the hedging and caused a recovery of early losses. Opening prices were: October, 20.80; December, 21.00; March, 20.06; May, 19.80; July, 19.83.

Chicago Grain Market

Chicago, Sept. 29.—Wheat opened unchanged ½c. lower; corn was unchanged to ¼c. lower; oats unchanged to ¼c. lower, and provisions lower. Opening prices were: Wheat, September, 1.16⅝; December, 1.20¼ to 1.21; May, 1.25¼ to 1.25⅝. Corn, December, .50 to .50¼; May, .55¼ to .55. Oats, September, .49; December, .36¼; May, .40¼ to .40⅜. Lard, October, 9.80; January, 9.05 to 9.10. Ribs, January, 7.70.

London Market

London, Sept. 29.—The stock market was unsteady today. Consols 48⅝, off ⅛; 3½s war loan 88, off ¼; 5s 88⅝, up ¼; 4½s 81¼; 4s 96; French 5s 40, off ¼; Russian 5s 9½; 4½s 7; 4s 9. Eagles flat 4 9-16, after much trading.

SEATTLE COMES BACK QUICKLY AFTER WAR

Spillane Finds Evidence of Prosperity in All but Wooden Shipbuilding

By RICHARD SPILLANE.

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 29.—Seattle, like Rome, sits on seven hills, and anyone desirous of taking a primary course in mountain climbing, can get it here. Puget Sound is the front yard of the city and Lake Washington its rear — salt water and tidal forces on one side and still water and great beauty of landscape on the other. A ship canal joins the Sound and the lake, part of its route being through Lake Union. Off in the distance is Mount Rainier, tallest mountain in the republic, snow-capped and majestic.

Seattleites like to refer to their city as the New York of the West. It has some of the spirit and color of the great Metropolis.

In the war period Seattle was tremendously active. Here was the center of wooden ship-building, together with a considerable construction of steel ships. Thirty-five of the wooden ships lashed side by side are anchored in Lake Union now, mute evidence of the waste of that type of vessel. The great ship yards are idle except for repair work. The large forces employed in rush orders in the spruce and fir forests are scattered. Ocean commerce has had a severe depression.

From all these elements it would seem as if Seattle should be pretty hard hit. The impression outside is that Seattle is suffering from flying too high and falling very low. Unquestionably the city flew high, but from the depression that followed there has been a pronounced recovery. Unemployment estimates range from 8,000 to 12,000, which isn't nigh in these times for a city of 315,000 people.

Investigation shows business generally to be in a healthy and improving state. If there is anything the matter with Seattle, it is not apparent.

COMMERCE PICKING UP.

There is a great diversity of industries—shipyards, drydocks, foundries, smelters, packing houses, canneries, flour mills, tool machine making plants, clay products, textile mills, rope cordage works, belting and packing factories, shoe factories, furniture works, soap plants, boiler works, and scores of other establishments.

There is nothing like the normal amount of trans-Pacific commerce, but there are signs of it picking up. Cargoes of silk are coming once more and "silk specials" are running on express train schedule across the continent. Importation of Soya beans for the soap-making concerns of the Middle West are assuming considerable dimensions.

Douglas fir is going to Asia in big quantities. The great piers that are the pride of Seattle have comparatively few vessels taking or discharging cargoes, but there are more vessels in service now than some months ago, and shipping men report a slow but steady improvement in both the coastwise and overseas traffic.

LIVING COST LOWER.

One thing noticeable to a visitor from the East is that the cost of living is much lower on the Pacific coast than the Atlantic seaboard. The bungalow type of house predominates. It sells and rents at prices that surprise the easterner. Foodstuffs, particularly fruits and vegetables, are cheap, and very cheap, according to eastern standards. The public markets are much better conducted than those east of the Alleghenies.

The explanation for low rents is probably cheap lumber and plenty of land. The explanation of cheap fruits and vegetables is the immense production here.

But wages are not low. Apparently a remarkable change has come in the labor situation. Seattle got considerable notoriety as an I. W. W. hotbed. Today the open shop rules even on the water front. Reports from the lumber districts are that in some instances workers voted a reduction in wages so the plants could compete with Eastern and Southern lumber despite the very high railroad rates.

THE LOCAL SITUATION.

As to local conditions, industrially, financially, commercially and otherwise, the following is a digest of statements made to your representative by H. B. Erling, vice-president of the Chicago, Milwaukee & Puget Sound Railway; E. G. Anderson, president of the Western Dry Goods Company; A. B. Stewart, president of the Stewart & Holmes, wholesale druggists; D. E. Frederick, president of the Frederick & Nelson Company, one of the largest department stores on the coast; E. G. McMickin, general passenger agent Admiral Line, running ships to Alaska, Asia and coastwise; E. L. Carey, Northern Pacific Railway; Judge George T. Donworth; Nathan Eckstein, largest grocery wholesaler in the Northwest; John P. Hartman, lawyer and farmer; E. H. Thomas, Puget Sound Power & Light Company; W. M. Clist, building contractor; W. L. Rhodes, department store, and Hans Hederson, contractor.

Drugs—Sales 7½ per cent. below last year in volume and 18 per cent. below in dollars. August showed 10 per cent. better than July, and September is better than August.

Department stores—There never has been actual cause for discouragement. Today the people are quick to take advantage of real bargains. Purchasing power of the public surprising—warehouse stocks lower than they should be.

Sea traffic—Vacation travel almost as good as last year—in trans-Pacific passenger business American craft are handicapped as against the British and the subsidized Japanese ships, yet distinct headway is being made. A galling feature is the tendency of Americans to patronize Japanese or British ships in preference to American, despite superior accommodation of American vessels of the new type. This extends to attaches of our government. A protest has been entered to the Secretary of State. A particular effort is being made for the China freight trade. This shows every promise of succeeding. The Admiral Line, which established its service recently, is overbooked now.

WALL ST. GOSSIP

By MONITOR

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—Irregularity with a moderate reactionary tendency furnished the characteristics of Wednesday's stock market. Sugar stocks were weak under the influence of the bearish sentiment created by Tuesday's announcement of reductions in the price of raw sugars and the unfavorable financial status of Cuba Cane. Railroad stocks were heavy, with further declines in Pennsylvania and Reading, as well as a slight tendency toward reaction in some of the low and medium-priced shares. Thus far no great uneasiness is felt over the prospect of a strike by the trainmen, but so long as the threat of such a development is held over the heads of the carriers there is no disposition to be extremely bullish on the railroad outlook.

PROBABLY the firmest tendency, relatively speaking, is being displayed by the copper stocks and some of the oil specialties. There has been very good buying of Cerro de Pasco, partly on account of its low-cost copper production and partly on account of the rise in silver. There is quite a strong sentiment in favor of Pacific Oil, as it is understood that drilling operations in the company's properties are being undertaken with a view to a large increase in production.

GENERAL factors which, however, were of slight influence in the market, consisted of a decline in German marks to the new low level of 73, somewhat higher market for cotton and a decline in the gains. The weekly review of the Iron Age attracted attention through its statement to the effect that leaders in the steel industry were more confidently hopeful of expanding the activities in the last quarter.

THE further decline in German marks to a new low record and weakness in the other Continental exchange, particularly French francs, is causing serious concern to important banking interests. Bankruptcy of the German government is taken as a foregone conclusion and the fear of the effect of such a collapse on France politically and on the rest of Europe generally is frankly stated by these bankers.

THERE are some financial interests who are of the opinion that the large accumulations of gold by the Federal Reserve Bank are being made for the purpose of meeting such a situation with its necessary reflex in the financial affairs of the United States. Because of these opinions they are distinctly neutral in their references to the future of securities prices.

A REPORT published in a morning paper that the United States government is preparing to enter suit against the Baldwin Locomotive Works for $10,000,000 of back taxes brought heavy selling in to the stock early in the day. The report later was denied at Washington and officials of the company disclaimed any knowledge of the proposed action. Thereafter the stock moved uncertainly, finally closing at about the low price for the day.

MEXICAN PETROLEUM was the particularly weak feature on the morning but at the time this stock was being depressed under large offerings the domestic oils showed great strength. Firms specialising in these latter stocks express the opinion that the crude oil market probably has seen the worst of depression, and are advocating the purchase of the domestic oils, employing the usual investment discrimination for the long pull.

A LONG list of railroad reports to the I. C. C. were made public and were almost a unit in their showing large reductions in gross, with varying percentages of increase in net operating income. In many cases, the executives frankly admit that these favorable results are made at the expense of maintenance of way, a method which cannot long be continued they claim, without seriously impairing the efficiency of the line.

SELLING Allied Chemical and Dye was reported as due to profit taking by traders who have purchased stock around the 40 level. It is understood that the group in charge of its market also were willing to take some of their profits, although firms which have been active in it recently remain optimistic as to its future movement.

THERE was pronounced weakness in the motor stocks throughout the session. Selling of Chandler Motors and Studebaker was of the class called good, particularly in the latter. The commission house element did not take kindly to the announcement by the Saxon Motor Car Company of a reduction of from $200 to $300 per car.

CUBA CANE SGAR pfd made a new low at 17⅛ following the official announcement of a ew financing plan. The common also was weak. Some firms took the view that the proposal was solely for the purpose of tiding the company over its present financial plight until a sufficient amount of raw sugar could be sold to repay the approximately $18,000,000 due the banks.

SINCE the announcement of the proposed plan for the consolidation of Burns Brothers and the Farrel Coal Company, the former stock has been strong. Buying has been reported as for the account of interests identified with the companies, and yesterday Burns Bros. sold at 105, which was four points above Tuesday night's close.

LOOK FOR TRADE WAR WITH GERMANY

Evans Says Western Business Men Dread Approaching Teutonic Crash

By C. B. EVANS.

Chicago, Sept. 29.—Marks (made in Germany) touched seventy-eight one-hundredths of a cent on a par of nearly twenty-four cents, and a new scratch was made on the nervous system of the exporter and the expert in foreign exchange. And Germany was moved a little farther away from the United States as to quotations of bills and a little nearer to us in the competition for the trade of the world.

Many in this city look upon that country almost as if she were entering another war, this time a commercial contest, for they think that every decline in the monetary unit of Germany means just so much greater advantage over us in the competition. That is true only to a slight degree, for it is work at low wages that is making Germany again a world menace.

GLAD TO GET HOME.

But it is not Germany only. Chicago financial men who have been in Europe recently, while endeavoring to put the best side out in their conversation, speak and act as if they had come from under a great black cloud and were glad to get home where the sun shines. They name several countries in which there is a great excess of merchandise ready for export, one of them noting specially Scandinavia, and remarking that the Baltic ports are full of unsold goods.

Along with this is a vast amount of unemployment, with monuments of business depression in the form of factories with windows boarded up. The situation in England is sufficiently described by Lloyd George's word, "Appalling."

There is a general disposition in Europe to flee from the wrath that has come. Europeans are slipping into the United States through the fingers of the immigration authorities in numbers over and above the allotments to the various countries provided for in the law. But also a general shifting about of the population of the world, more particularly its business, appears to have begun.

MOVING INDUSTRIES AWAY.

Some American manufacturers are setting up their shops in India because of the cheap labor there, and for a long time past China has been regarded with a hungry eye as a place for the economical manufacture of goods now made in this country.

One hears also of migration to Argentina, not yet large in the number of persons, but significant on account of what the movement means with respect to manufacture and trade. The tides of travel have changed materially since the hot breath of war blew over the world. It would seem, however, that the Germans have less impulse to come this way than in former years. They are thoroughly harnessed together in their own country to achieve a purpose. England suffers correspondingly.

It is largely on account of these conditions that some good observers have spoken of the present moderate list in American affairs as a "false boom." We could perhaps get along in an economic way without Europe, indeed, be almost entirely sufficient to ourselves, but such a change would involve adjustments that would throw business, for a time, into chaos.

WORLD NOT LIQUIDATED.

Clearly the world has not liquidated and one may even say that it cannot except through a process covering many years. It is the testimony of Chicago bankers that indebtedness to corporations in this country that have granted credit to foreigners is generally liquidated at maturity. One would expect many requests for renewals and doubtless many are made but so far as it goes this statement is encouraging.

There is, therefore, some ground even from the viewpoint of European affairs for the lively hopes of many individuals for a revival in American trade. This attitude has been expressed in Chicago lately by rather liberal purchases of railroad stocks by men of experience. One might ask why they choose that class of investment or speculation in preference to industrial issues, for the railroads cannot make much of an advance in their earnings without a revival of industry.

True, Germany cannot compete with us in our land transportation activities, but she can curtail our output of many manufactured articles and appears now to be doing so, for one hears of German competition with local producers far inland in the United States. While there is a scarcity of many manufactured articles in this country, which doubtless will lead to some revival in production, we must still remember what they are doing across the Atlantic.

Locomotive Shipments

Exports of locomotives increased last month as compared with July. Among August shipments abroad were twenty-one engines, valued at $780,200, to Mexico; seven to Brazil, valued at $228,500, and twenty-five to China, valued at $1,105,409. The total for the month was sixty-six, and in all they were valued at $2,324,737.

Car Loadings Increase

Reports to the American Railway Association for the September 17 week show that 853,762 cars were loaded in this country with revenue freight. This is the best record since the December 4 week of last year. The gain over the September 10 week of this year was 105,644 cars.

Crude Oil Production

In August the daily average crude oil output of this country was 1,321,419 barrels, against 1,300,904 in July. For the month production totalled 40,694,000, against 40,328,000 in July.

Boston Financial Notes

It is figured that raising fares to ten cents cost the Boston Elevated 25,000,000 riders a year.

Jeremiah Smith, Jr., will go to Mexico City with Thomas W. Lamont of J. P. Morgan and Co.

On or about October 15 the New Haven road will obtain $5,000,000 from the government as the balance of an $8,000,000 loan.

The Deep Sea Fisheries Co. has completed its organization and taken over the properties of the East Coast Fisheries Co. and East Coast Fisheries Products Co.

Laconia Car directors have anticipated payment of an additional $100,000 notes, due July 1, 1922. The only notes outstanding are $300,000 maturing in 1923.

Articles of organization as Massachusetts corporations have been filed by the Amigold Company, Boston, capital $500,000; E. F. Caldwell, Inc., Boston, 1,000 shares of no par value; O. O. W. Corporation, Boston, $150,000; International Development Co., Boston, 5,000 shares without par value.

Gold and Silver Prices

Bar gold was up 5d at 111s 4d an ounce in London today, while silver advanced ¼d to 43¼d an ounce.

GOOD TONE TO THE BOSTON LIST

Prices Are Higher at Opening and Later; Curb Leaders Display Strength

Prices worked upward in Boston as well as in New York, but the local movement was not as pronounced on the rise as on the other market. Amoskeag continued its ascent, selling at a new year high on its first transaction. Carson Hill was the most active issue in early trading and gained a fraction. All price changes were small during the morning. The market was narrow and most trading was of an odd lot character.

Fractional gains were made by American Telephone, Massachusetts Gas, Mohawk, New Haven, United Fruit, United Shoe, American Sugar and New England Oil. Small declines were recorded for Swift & Co., Davis Daly, Bingham Mines, Copper Range, Boston Elevated, Gray & Davis and National Leather.

FIRM TONE TO CURB.

The Curb market had a firm tone at the opening and held it during the forenoon. In fact, the trend was upward during the morning. Leaders were Boston and Montana, Eureka Alpha and Mutual. At the end of the morning Alpha was up ⅛ at 1⅞, a new high, Mutual 1 cent at 29 cents, Boston and Montana 11¼ cents at 11-16, Hecla Divide half a cent at 7½ cents, Eureka 2 cents at 39 cents, First National 2 cents at 90 cents, Verde Mines 1 cent at 19 cents, Seven Metals 1 cent at 8 cents. Among declines were Colorado Extension 1 cent at 54 cents, Jerome Verde 2 cents at 23 cents and Un Verde Extension ¼ at 25⅜.

U. S. Will Recover First

Regarding the business outlook, President George S. Mumford of the Commonwealth Trust Company, said: "We have been fed up on European conditions, on abnormal foreign exchange, on Russia's reverting to a nation of nomads as it was 500 years ago, on the bankrupt state of most great continental nations, until we have almost come to feel that all these things mean economic ruin for ourselves. As a matter of fact, this is very far from being true. We have been obliged to pay for the waste and the inflation that the great war caused us, but we have been doing it in our own way, and to a large extent independently of the other great nations of the world. In like manner our recovery will be our own and will go on in great measure independently. We cannot help being affected to some extent by the financial and business troubles of other great commercial nations, but our recovery ought to precede theirs, and we are sure to experience a normal consumption of our own products by our own people, which means stable prices and active business, long before Europe has shown any real approach to settled conditions."

MEMPHIS CHAMPIONS HAVE HAVANA DATES

Fort Worth, Tex., Sept. 29.—Memphis, champion of the Southern Association, will go to Havana, Cuba, for eight weeks of baseball after finishing the post season series with the Fort Worth team.

West Virginia Coal Mines

During 1920 West Virginia mines produced 89,590,274 gross tons of coal, according to Chief Lambie of the Department of Mines. There were 883 companies operating 1,440 mines. He figures that the State still has coal deposits totalling 159,814,662,527 short tons.

Firmer Tone to Copper

Owing to a large domestic order for red metal there is a better tone to the copper market and it is reported that large selling interests are holding more firmly to quotations.

Corporation Reports

For the first eight months of this year the Chicago Elevated Railways Co. reports net of $1,611,069 on operations. After providing for interest there was $47,002 deficit.

The Columbia Graphophone Co. reports for the first half of this year a deficit after depreciation and other charges of $2,122,875, against net income of $2,809,375 for the corresponding 1920 period.

The August gross of the Pacific Gas & Electric Co. decreased $121,842 while net after taxes was $135,095 less than for the corresponding 1920 month. For eight months the balance after preferred dividends increased $533,725.

TRAFFIC LEAGUE URGES FREIGHT RATE CUT

Also Declares Railroad Wages Must Be Reduced to Readjust Business

Unless freight rates are immediately reduced and railroad employes' wages cut accordingly, the country will face a serious situation, according to resolves passed by the executive committee of the National Industrial Traffic League.

William H. Chandler, manager of the transportation bureau of the Boston Chamber of Commerce and president of the Traffic League, made this announcement.

In its statement the Traffic League declares that "study of readjustment processes indicates that the price of practically every commodity has been heavily reduced.

"Freight rates, which are such a large factor in our industrial fabric, have not been adjusted, but remain at the highest level in history. Manifestly there can be no return to normal business conditions until the price of transportation bears a proper relation to commodity values."

"The failure of the railroads to reduce their operating costs is one of the principal factors in the present economic situation.

The executive committee sums up the situation in the following resolves:

"RESOLVED, therefore, by the executive committee of the National Industrial Traffic League, that it demand of the Railway executives that they abrogate immediately the so-called national agreements, made effective during the period of Federal control, and which, in its opinion, expired with the return of the railways to private management, and be it further

"RESOLVED, That it demand of the railway executives that wages of railway employes be adjusted upon the basis of wages paid to similar classes of labor in private employment, and simultaneously with such adjustment, a horizontal reduction in rates at least equivalent to the amount of wage reductions be established."

CONSOLIDATION TO STIMULATE COMPETITION

Professor Ripley, Author of Railroad Plan, Describes His Recommendations

"Concentration and competition" are the two main points of the Interstate Commerce Commission's plan to consolidate the major railroads of the United States, according to a statement issued by Professor William Z. Ripley, Harvard transportation expert and author of the plan, in explaining his recommendation for rehabilitating New England rail lines.

"The nineteen systems into which the commission plan would consolidate all the rail lines of the country," said the Professor, "are all competitive. No system is supposed to have regional monopoly, such as is provided under the plan recently adopted in Great Britain.

"Under Federal administration we had that and found that regional monopoly furnished no incentive for the lines to keep on their toes.

"Under the proposed commission plan there are two systems in each territory. Every city is supposed to have two systems competing for traffic. Both of these are supposed to be big enough to serve a large territory and give satisfactory service, together with cheap through transportation.

UNIFIED N. E. SYSTEM.

"I have laid out the railroads in trunk lines in the South and in the West, matching each other so that each has to fight for the traffic and give service to get it.

"Of course the plan is not compulsory, but when once adopted by any road no consolidation not in conformity with it can be undertaken.

"I have recommended a unified New England system, comprising all carriers here except the Boston & Albany, the Central Vermont, which is the Grand Trunk, and the Grand Trunk into Portsmouth and the Canadian Pacific, with competition at all points.

"I have also recommended a unified New England system with access to Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, by a merger with the Lehigh and New England, in order to provide a line over which hard and soft coal can be brought cheaply and distributed among our industries and other consumers.

"The commission has not adopted this plan for New England, but has suggested variations from it, although it does not commend any one of them."

LITTLE ENTHUSIASM SHOWN.

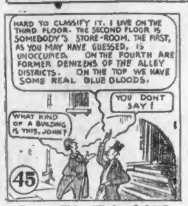

The attitude of the leaders in the New England railroad field, after a study of the plan, refused today to show any enthusiasm for it.

They pointed out that some of the railroads, like the Boston & Maine, are included in two or more groups which in times past have been strongly antagonistic.

The feeling of skepticism and pessimism among the railroad heads was based, it was declared, upon the general attitude of the commission toward this corner of the country, as exemplified recently when the transportation body refused to grant a 10 or 15 per cent. increase in division of trunk line rates.

One railroad executive who declined to allow his name to be used characterized the whole plan as "a bundle of absurdities, put forward by the Interstate Commerce Commission in order to play safe by proposing widely variant schemes."

MUSIC CARNIVALS AT STRAND BALLROOM

Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday of this week will be Musical Carnival Nights at the Strand Ballroom on Huntington avenue. Last Tuesday evening Eddie Schell's Orchestra, direct from Pemberton Inn, played in addition to Miller's Strand Jazz.

Tonight Walter Johnson, the celebrated colored pianist, will conduct his orchestra in person and promises to demonstrate the various New York styles of dance music. Not to be outdone, Frank Miller will feature Rudolph Starita in his latest Xylophone solos. Saturday evening Art Tornquist's Orchestra, formerly of the Jack O' Lantern, will play in addition to Frank Miller's Jazz.

As an extra attraction a special dancing exhibition and European baskets will be given to the ladies.

OCT. 10 TO BE DAY FOR FIRE PREVENTION

Cox, in Proclamation, Calls on Bay State Citizens to Lessen Hazard

Governor Cox, in a proclamation issued today, designates Oct. 10 as "Fire Prevention Day" throughout the Commonwealth, and calls upon all citizens to aid in the prevention of fires.

THE COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS—By His Excellency, Channing H. Cox, Governor.

A PROCLAMATION.

In accordance with the request of the President and established custom, and with the object of safeguarding property from careless and unnecessary destruction, and to encourage every effort made in the prevention of fires, I hereby designate and set apart October 10th of the current year as

FIRE PREVENTION DAY.

Fifty years ago on that day Chicago had its most disastrous fire. In the year 1920 half a billion dollars of property was destroyed by fire in America alone—fires that were largely preventable. The annual loss of life by fire in the United States is estimated at 15,000 persons. Such destruction of life and property, in large part the result of carelessness, is a serious indictment of the American people. Therfore it is earnestly requested that on this day inspections be made, accumulations of waste be removed, and every other means of lessening the fire hazard in the Commonwealth be studied and adopted.

Given at the Executive Chamber, in Boston, this twenty-ninth day of September, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and twenty-one, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred and forty-sixth.

CHANNING H. COX.

By His Excellency the Governor.
Frederick H. Cook, Secretary of the Commonwealth.

God save the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

GRAYCE BREWER.

Grayce Brewer and her "Seven Syncopating Syrens," who are the big feature of the New Wayburn show, have been giving the guests of the Copley-Plaza dinner and supper dansants during the past few days, and will be at the big hotel all week. On Saturday afternoon they will play for the opening of the season of tea dansants.

FILIPINO GIRLS EXHIBIT FINE EMBROIDERY

Show Shoppers at Shepard's How Gowns and Waists Are Made in Orient

Under a nipa roof, daintily dressed in pineapple woven gowns, two Filipino maidens all day long in modern Boston, embroidered dainty Filipino garments, with tracery delicate and finely drawn.

They are the Misses Raquel Bartolome and Urbana Crus of Manila the Philipppines, and they are on a tour throughout these United States to show Miss and Madame America how their Filipino gown, and waist, and sheerest chemise are made in the faraway Orient by nimble, skillful little fingers.

All this week at the Shepard Stores, on the fourth floor, the delicate work is going on, while women stop from their shopping to admire the hheer romance of the embroidery. Pedro Navarra, also of Manila, travels with the two girls, and their manager is Samuel Scott of Chicago.

As Mr. Scott explained the work: "The tour was undertaken last May 1, when we started out on our itinerary through the country. We have already traveled through many Southern cities. Travel by train is the irksome part of the tour to them, but the nine hours of embroidery they do each day is just fun. For they love it, since it is the native work, the delicate inheritance of all Filipino women.

"Ours," so the little ladies say, "is a tour of education, to draw the Philippines nearer their big sister, the United States, by demonstrating to American women the manner in which the embroideries, dear to woman's heart, are done in our beloved faraway isle."

Vimy Fighters to Meet

Memories of Vimy ridge will be revived tonight when Vimy Camp No. 1, American Volunteers of the Canadian Expeditionary Forces, will hold a social evening and silver tea in Odd Fellows' Hall, Berkeley and Tremont streets. About 500 are expected to attend in uniform.

DON'T TAKE YEAST WITHOUT IRON!

Both Are Necessaay for Best Results—Thousands Now Take Ironized Yeast in Convenient Tablet Form

Run-down, weak and thin people, who were eating yeast for health, have found that yeast brings far better and quicker results when it is taken with iron.

Through this splendid combination of tonics, now embodied in Ironized Yeast, folks who for years suffered with loss of strength, nervousness, anaemia, thinness and other "rundown" conditions, are regaining glorious health and strength almost as if by magic.

This is because Ironized Yeast supplies run-down bodies with just the elements they need—vitamines and iron. These two substances have been found absolutely essential to good health. Yet the modern diet, in many cases, is almost entirely lacking in them. No wonder so many thousands of men and women become sickly, run-down, and old before their time.

Ironized Yeast is performing what seem like actual miracles everywhere. In many cases it brings a noticeable improvement in two or three days. Enjoy the clear skin, sparking eyes, rugged strength and health of youth! Get Ironized Yeast today! Sold at all druggists in patented sani-tape packages. Each contains 10 days' treatment and costs only a dollar—(just 10c. a day), or no more per dose than ordinary yeast. Special directions for children in each package. Made by the Ironized Yeast Company, Atlanta, Ga.

New England Must Keep Control of Own Money

New York Bankers Take Our Savings and Wrest From Us Our Railways

Statistics recently compiled show that the people of Massachusetts are the most saving people in America. Two out of every three of our people, or more than 2,500,000, have savings bank accounts. New England as a section, leads all other sections of the country in the percentage of savings. This has been so for a great many years.

The savings of the people of Massachusetts and of New England have become the capital which has built up the great waste of the West. New York bankers take these savings from the people of Massachusetts and wrest away from them the control of their own properties, the railroads and the street railways. Before we awakened, Morgan and his associates had almost taken away from the people of Connecticut and Rhode Island all their street railways, from the people of Connecticut all their public utilities, like the gas and electric light companies, and from the people of Massachusetts the street railways of more than half our area.

Then under the leadership of the Boston American and a lot of good citizens like Judge Brandeis and Judge Anderson and E. A. Filene, the Wall Street conspiracy against the economic independence of New England was halted.

Just consider the difference between the percentage of depositors in the savings banks of Massachusetts and New York. The percentage is 67 for Massachusetts and only 35 for New York.

Today, New England railroads are suffering, and New England is suffering through them, on account of unfair division of rates between New England railroads and the railroads which centre in New York city. We must change this condition of things. We must keep control of our own money and we must insist that New England get her share in the division of railroad rates.

What Ails Senator Glass?

He Declares His Accusation of Admiral Sims Does Not Imply Criticism

What is the matter with Senator Glass of Virginia? Is he afraid of Admiral Sims? Sims told him in London in the presence of two other Congressmen that he did not believe that America ought to strive to get a merchant marine.

Sims finds that the story hurts him in America and denies it. Senator Glass, in order to sustain his veracity, reiterates the statement that Sims did tell it to him in exactly the way he quoted him. The two other members of Congress, gentlemen of intelligence and honor, who heard Sims make the statement, corroborate Senator Glass.

Indeed, neither Senator Glass' statement nor the corroboration of the other two members of Congress are necessary to make the American people believe that Sims either said or thought just what Senator Glass reports that he said. Of course, this unpatriotic British bootlicker could be assumed to have just such sentiments.

He was rebuked by Taft and his then Secretary of the Navy for the expression of indecent pro-British sentiments some years ago. When he was sent to England to represent the United States Navy at the British request during the war, he was warned by his superior officer to beware of pro-British prejudices and to remember that he was an American and representing the American Navy. Shame on the American officer who has to be reminded of that fact. He never should have been sent at the request of Great Britain under such circumstances, and his sending was characteristic of the Wilson administration.

Since Sims is more British than American of course he does not want to see an American merchant marine upbuilt.

After reiterating the charge against Sims, what does Senator Glass mean by the closing statement:

Two of my congressional colleagues were present when the statement was made and the three of us discussed the amazing nature of it after leaving the office of Admiral Sims. However, I wish it to be understood that I did not present the matter in any controversial spirit in my brief remarks in the Senate, nor in any sense of implied criticism of Admiral Sims.

Can an American Senator accuse an American admiral of having expressed such sentiments without implied criticism of him? Is it a correct position for an American officer to take? Does not the statement that he expressed such sentiments imply the severest kind of criticism of him? Is a man fit to be a United States Senator or a common citizen of the United States who can accuse an American officer of expressing such sentiments without considering that he is implying a criticism of him?

What is the matter with Senator Glass?

Where the Heart Is

Arthur Griffith, John MacNeil and Robert Barton will represent Ireland at the conference which may bring peace and contentment to a distracted land. President Eamon De Valera will be within convenient consulting distance.

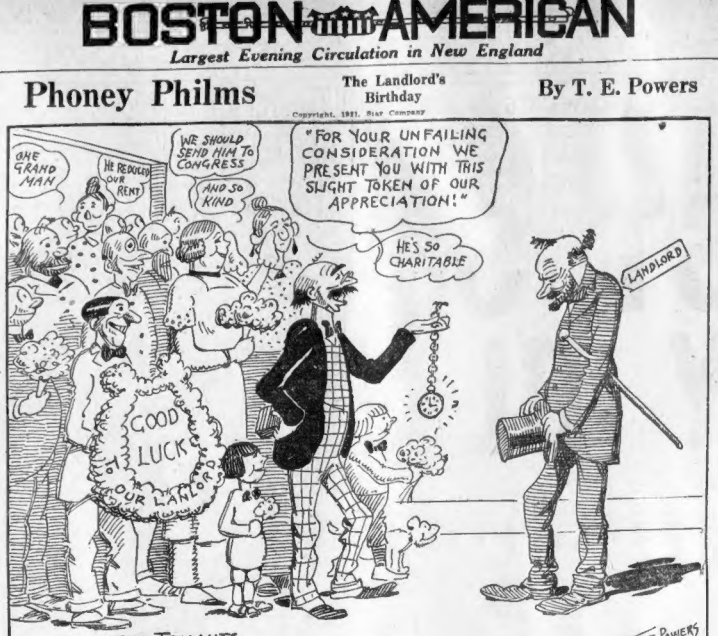

Have you noticed the names of the men who have been chosen to represent Ireland? We are informed that one of them is of Welch origin, like Lloyd George himself; another is of Scotch, still another of English origin. Mr. De Valera himself, though wholly Irish in heart and part Irish in blood, is partly Spanish in blood and entirely in name.

The composite character of this distinguished Irish representation reminds us of the composite character of the American population. After all, the test is not one of blood, but of birthplace and of environment. It is where the heart is.

THE ARGUMENT YOU MAKE IN YOUR LIFE

A Man as He Thinks Himself to Be Is Very Different From What He Seems to Be to Others and From the Real Man as God Alone Knows Him

By Dr. Charles Fleischer

JOHN as he thinks himself to be is very different from what he seems to be to others, and both of these Johns are decidedly different from the real John as God alone sees and knows him.

The genial New England physician, philosopher and writer, Oliver Wendell Holmes, has somewhere made a whimsical study of these three Johns.

All of which it would pay you to look up and to ponder. But for our purpose herein, we want to make only the suggestion: that human personality and human character are not static, do not stay put (to all intents) like a stone; but are fluid, subject to mutual influence, obviously and subtly.

When one writes or thinks on all sorts of themes, the springs of memory become amazingly active; so that one is continuously surprised by the store of recollection ready for service.

High School Debate

The writer recalls a high school debate in which he took part. The question was: Which is the greater influence—Heredity or Environment?

His memory does not serve sufficiently to enable him to recall which side he took. But now he would take both sides—and all sides—on this question. And on most questions!

For truth is a circle, and it needs the contribution of many arcs to give us the full-circled truth.

Herein is the value of the paradox, and of the paradoxical habit of mind. Namely, because a particular view may be true, and yet the acceptance of its apparent opposite may be essential to your having the whole truth.

Take the familiar query regarding the hen and the egg. Which came first, the hen or the egg? Of course, the egg, you say! And, equally, of course, the hen!

The old scholastics agreed upon the maxim: Omnium ex ovo—everything is from an egg. Yes, but whence the egg?

You know how inevitably the really thinking child, when first you try to teach him about origins, will meet your confident statement that God made everything with the innocent and unanswerable query: But who made God?

To return, then, to this question about Heredity and Environment and their relative influence upon personality and character, you see how futile it would be to take either side, to the exclusion of the other.

All manner of experiments have been made, in order to determine which is the more important factor.

Certainly, for all practical purposes, we need the most favorable possible conditions of both heredity and environment for the successful breeding of a human race which will steadily approach our ideal of human standards.

As for individual character and personality, with which, in this little essay, we are specifically concerned, they are never assured, because they are subject always to all kinds of influences.

It is a trite observation, that we are judged by the company we keep. But even that truism is subject to a great variety of applications and interpretations. As, for instance, that much of our association, in these complexly interrelated days of much travel, many interests, and of consequently casual mingling, is thrust upon us, as it were.

As Companions

Also we ought to realize that the books we choose as companions, the kinds of plays we habitually visit, the music that commonly we choose to hear and sing, the amusements and the diversions which we usually seek, the sort of conversation in which we take part—in a word, all of our associations and interests are not so much a basis for being judged, as they are sources of continuous influence towards the making and the unmaking of character and personality.

CHOICE AND WILL are active organizers of our "company."

In a democratic age, we live so near to one another and are so much more frequently and variously touching one another's lives, that we ought to develop a new and subtle sense of mutual responsibility.

That poet gave wise and friendly warning—altogether decent and democratic—who said:

Nor knowest thou what argument thy life to thy neighbor's creed has lent.

THERE'S a movement in the land
By a sane and helpful band—Safety First;
Intended for the good of all
Rich and poor and great and small—Safety First;
Just a lesson all should heed,
And 'tis good advice, indeed,
Don't be too rash with your speed—Safety First.

Children, on the way to school
Where you learn the golden rule—Safety First;
When you're near a crossing street
Where the teams and autos meet—Safety First;
To yourself and friends be true,
Look both ways, be sure you do,
It may save some pain to you—Safety First.

Lovers, with your girls afloat,
Don't be reckless in the boat—Safety First;
What at first seems giffy fun
Shows a fool if harm is done—Safety First;
And the girls will love you more
If you bring them safe to shore,
They have sense, you may be sure—Safety First.

Those in shop and in the mill,
Danger lies around you still—Safety First;
Keep your eyes and wits about,
Don't be 'fraid to cry "Look Out!"—Safety First.
Gears and wheels and shafts and pins
Hurt the hands or head or shins.
He fares best who always wins—Safety First.

On the land or on the sea
Let your motto always be—Safety First.
Make a rule throughout your life,
Teach your children and your wife—Safety First;
Everywhere you chance to go,
Every dearest friend you know,
They will thank you for saying so—Safety First.

MOVEMENTS OF VENUS PUZZLED ANCIENTS

By Garrett P. Serviss

LOOK before daylight for the planet Venus, at the feet of the constellation of "The Twins," startlingly bright and wonderfully beautiful. Her dazzling smile as she paces among the morning stars paled by contrast with her supreme radiance, awoke thoughts of her empire over the imaginative minds of the ancient Greeks, who were puzzled by her alternate appearance before sunrise and after sunset, and, not quite sure whether these successive apparitions were of the same celestial body, gave her two names—Hesperus, when she is shone in the evening, and Phosphorus when she illumined the dark hour before daybreak.

This curious pendulum-like motion of Venus, carrying her now east and now west of the sun, continued to be a source of obfuscation for the early astronomers until long after Ptolemy's time. The same confusion of ideas was produced by the similar appearance of Mercury, which also can never be seen except near the sun, alternately in the evening and the morning.

Lesson for Dogmatists

Ptolemy's imaginary solar and planetary system, which stood almost unshaken for fifteen centuries, is one of the most absurdly ingenious conceptions that was ever set forth in the guise of scientific truth, and its final utter failure offers a good lesson for those who accept as lasting gospel every new scientific dogma that contemporary authority proclaims.

Science can never take a finished form, and it is likely that mutations may occur even in what today seem to be finally settled doctrines of astronomy.

Seeing no other way to account for the apparent backward motions of the planets at certain times in the course of their revolutions (he supposed always that it was the earth they revolved around), Ptolemy invented a series of imaginary circles, surrounding the earth, and in each circle, with the exception of that in which he supposed the sun to revolve, he placed a fictitious and invisible planet, travelling regularly around the earth.

The real planets he figured as revolving one around each of these fictitious bodies in a relatively small circle called an "epicycle." This enabled him to account for the occasional backward motions of the planets, notwithstanding that, upon the whole, they all advanced at varying rates in the same direction, each being carried by the motion of its fictitious double in a large orbit around the earth, called a "deferent."

Planets Befuddled Him

Since the sun showed no reverse motion, but travelled continually eastward around the earth, Ptolemy assumed that in this case there was no fictitious body concerned, and consequently no epicycle, the motion of the sun being performed in the deferent itself.

But the two planets Mercury and Venus led him further astray. He saw no way to explain the fact that they never quitted the vicinity of the sun, but appeared alternately in the morning and evening sky, except by assuming that the fictitious planets around which they revolved in epicycles always kept exactly in line with one another and exactly between the earth and the sun.

Upon this assumption he found it possible to account for both the clinging of Venus and Mercury to the neighborhood of the sun and their swinging alternately to the morning and the evening side.

Since Venus goes farther from the sun on each side than Mercury does, he made the epicycle of Venus correspondingly larger. But he placed Mercury nearer than Venus to the earth, which is the exact reverse of the truth.

Ptolemy did not see, as others who improved on his system did, that a considerable simplification might be affected in his complicated scheme, by supposing the sun to be the fictitious body around which both Venus and Mercury revolved, the apparent orbit of the sun around the earth being a common deferent for both of those planets. This would give the sun the distinction of being the only real and visible body traveling in a deferent.

Epicycles Stirred Science

These strange ideas, the product nevertheless, of a very ingenious and penetrating mind, for Ptolemy was one of the intellectual leaders of the second century after Christ, continued to hamper the advance of astronomical science even after Copernicus, in the middle of the sixteenth century, had set forth definitely the truth that the sun and not the earth is the centre of the solar system. Even Tycho and Kepler had some difficulty in completely shaking off the epicycles.

WILL CLIMB MT. EVEREST FROM THE NORTH

By Colonel Howard Bury,

Leader of Mt. Everest Expedition. (Special Cable Dispatch, Copyright and Supplied by the Mt. Everest Committee.)

(Conclusion of the dispatch which began in the Boston American yesterday.)

KHARTA, Tibet, Sept. 8, via Simla by courier Sept. 25.—Kamachu is a most beautiful valley and was reported a magnificent and easy approach to the mountain, as it passes right under the enormous precipices of Kamkalus Northern Peak. However, after a short visit to the valley we carefully examined the eastern face and the great southern ridge of Mount Everest, and found no possible means of getting up the formidable cliffs surrounding the Kamgshung glacier or the ice cliffs overhanging them.

The northern ridge is unapproachable from this valley, but they saw there must be another intermediate valley between the north ridge and the northeast spur, so they crossed the intervening ridge back again into Kharta Valley and followed the valley to its source.

Snow Slopes

At the valley head they found gentle snow slopes covered with fresh snow nearly knee deep, but proceeded with great difficulty until they reached nearly 23,000 feet, looking on to the north ridge of Mount Everest about a mile farther on and across another glacier.

After deciding it was possible to reach the northern ridge of Mount Everest from the valley, they started to lay plans for an attack on the mountain from that direction.

Under the present conditions of soft snow and warm weather it was quite impossible to taken laden coolies over this route, so the only thing to do was to prepare everything at the base, collect stores of firewood and rations for the coolies, get these carried as high as possible and then wait until the monsoon conditions abated and the snow became frozen hard, thus enabling a further advance.

Two Camps Made

With this end in view the advanced base camp was established about eighteen miles up the Kharta Valley at an approximate height of 17,500 feet and a second camp has been established on the rocks farther up the glacier just under 20,000 feet. It is proposed to establish another camp at 23,000 feet and still another one if possible and all goes well somewhere between 23,000 and 24,000 feet on the slopes of Everest itself.

After these arrangement were made all the alpine climbers came back to Kharta for a rest and to wait until the weather improved. Malleny and Bullock, however, left Kharta August 31 for the advanced base camp to complete preparations there.

Raeburn Arrives

To everyone's surprise, as there has been no post now for five weeks, Harold Raeburn suddenly arrived September 1, after being absent three months. He reported every road to the north practically impassable owing to the flood, all bridges being swept away, and he only managed to get along with the greatest difficulty.

The remainder of the expedition is moving to the base camp, leaving only Captain Wheeler, one of the interpreters, to look after the stores and keep us provisioned from here.

THE MORNING GROUCH

Do you ever ask yourself why you are so grouchy in the morning?

Can you give any sensible reason for it?

Do you know of any benefit which you derive from it?

Do you get any satisfaction out of it?

Well, why are you grouchy?

Why not try to smile and be good natured in the morning?

Why get the household going wrong because you are cranky?

Get that snarl out of your voice and that surly scowl from your face, and sit down to your morning meal with a smile.

You perhaps feel a bit tired, a bit sleepy or lame, but there are others who may not feel any more comfortable, so why make everyone more disagreeable in feeling because you cannot be civil in the morning?

You might be surprised at what it would do for the family if you should get up and from the start address those to whom you must speak in a pleasant, well modulated voice, as if you were, to say the least—human.

Your work all day will go better if you start pleasantly.

Every member of your family will benefit by your pleasant greeting in the morning.
